

Computers & Writing 2018

D i g i t a l
P h r o n e s i s
Culture/Code/Play

May 24th - May 27th, 2018

Digital Phronesis: Culture/Code/Play

May 24-May 27 2018, George Mason University 4400 University Drive, Fairfax, VA 22030

Table of Contents

Welcome Letter	2
Schedule at a Glance	3
Conference Information	4
Connecting to Mason WiFi	5
Campus Maps	6-11
Local Food & Drink	12
Activity & Session Descriptions
Thursday May 24th	13
Friday May 25th	18
Saturday May 26th	44
Sunday May 27th	71
Conference Reviewers	82
Special Thanks	83
Conference Volunteers	84
Conference Sponsors	85
Participant Index	86

Welcome to Mason!

On behalf of the Writing and Rhetoric programs at GMU, the department of English, the University Libraries, and the conference planning committee, I am delighted to welcome you to Mason for the 34th Computers and Writing Conference. Our goal is to bring together our scholars, students, and community members to continue our exploration writing, computers, (both defined quite broadly) and the possibilities and challenges of brining these technologies together.

Our aim this year is to provide an exhiliarting and accessible conference, and as I worked on the program I found that I wanted to attend all of the sessions. I hope that you will find the offerings equally engaging and exciting.

I want to particularly thank a few people who were instrumental in putting on the show this year: Jen Ware and Ashley Hall once again provided excellent support with the C&W website; Matt Green served as our coordinator of volunteers; Beth Caravella designed the “happy robots” logo and program layout; and Rachael Lussos contributed both design expertise (those great boxes!) and also an excess of logistical support and organizational skill.

Here’s to you, Computers and Writing #34!

Douglas Eyman, 2018 C&W Conference Chair

Schedule At A Glance

Thursday May 24th
9:00 am - 12:00 pm	Morning Workshop Sessions (Fenwick & Johnson Center)
12:00 pm - 1:00 pm	Lunch @ The MIX
1:00 pm - 4:00 pm	Afternoon Workshop Sessions (Fenwick & Johnson Center)
5:00 pm - 7:00 pm	Opening Reception & Digital Showcase @ The MIX
Friday May 25th
9:00 am - 10:15 am	Concurrent Sessions A (Fenwick & JC)
10:30 am - 11:45 am	Concurrent Sessions B (Fenwick & JC)
12:00 pm - 2:00 pm	Keynote & Lunch (Dewberry/Bistro, JC)
2:15 pm - 3:30 pm	Concurrent Sessions C (Fenwick & JC)
3:45 pm - 5:00 pm	Concurrent Sessions D (Fenwick & JC)
6:00 pm - 8:00 pm	Awards Banquet (Dewberry/Bistro, JC)
8:30 pm - 11:30 pm	Bowling!
Saturday May 26th
9:00 am - 10:15 am	Concurrent Sessions E (Fenwick & JC)
10:30 am - 11:45 am	Concurrent Sessions F (Fenwick & JC)
12:00 pm - 2:00 pm	Keynote & Lunch (Dewberry/Bistro, JC)
2:15 pm - 3:30 pm	Concurrent Sessions G (Fenwick & JC)
3:45 pm - 5:00 pm	Concurrent Sessions H (Fenwick & JC)
5:15 pm - 6:30 pm	Poster Session
Sunday May 27th
9:00 am - 10:15 am	Concurrent Sessions I (Fenwick & JC)
10:30 am - 11:45 am	Concurrent Sessions J (Fenwick & JC)
12:00 pm - 1:00 pm	Lunch & 7C Meeting (JC-Dewberry)

Conference Information

Registration & Help Desk

On Thursday, the Registration Desk will be located in the MIX; Friday-Sunday Registration will be in the Dewberry Hall lobby, on the bottom level of the Johnson Center (JC). Our volunteers are happy to help and answer questions; just let us know if you need assistance.

Exhibitors

Exhibitors are located in on the third floor of the Johnson Center, Friday-Sunday. Coffee breaks will also be served in this area on Friday and Saturday from 3-4pm. Exhibitor's hours will be from 9am to 5pm on Friday and Saturday, with optional hours on Sunday from 9am to noon.

Parking

Free parking for the conference is available in the Rappahanock River Parking Deck on levels one and two of the general parking area (do not park in the visitor parking area - look for "C&W Parking" signs). No pass is required.

Anti-Harassment Policy

All conference attendees agree to create a safe atmosphere both during conference events and after hours on campus, in housing, and around town. Harassment based on gender, sexuality, race, size, ability, or age is strictly prohibited. Concerns should be directed to the Registration desk, or to one of the conference ambassadors staying in the dorms.

Photo/Video Policy

We have not arranged for photography or videography at the conference, but participants are encouraged to share photos and videos via the #cwcon and #cwcon18 hashtags. Please be considerate of your colleagues in attendance and be sure to obtain permission from anyone who is identifiable/in focus before posting.

Fragrance-Free Request

In order to ensure that all of our participants feel welcomed and supported, we respectfully request that attendees not use scented personal products (such as fragrances, colognes, and lotions) while attending the conference.

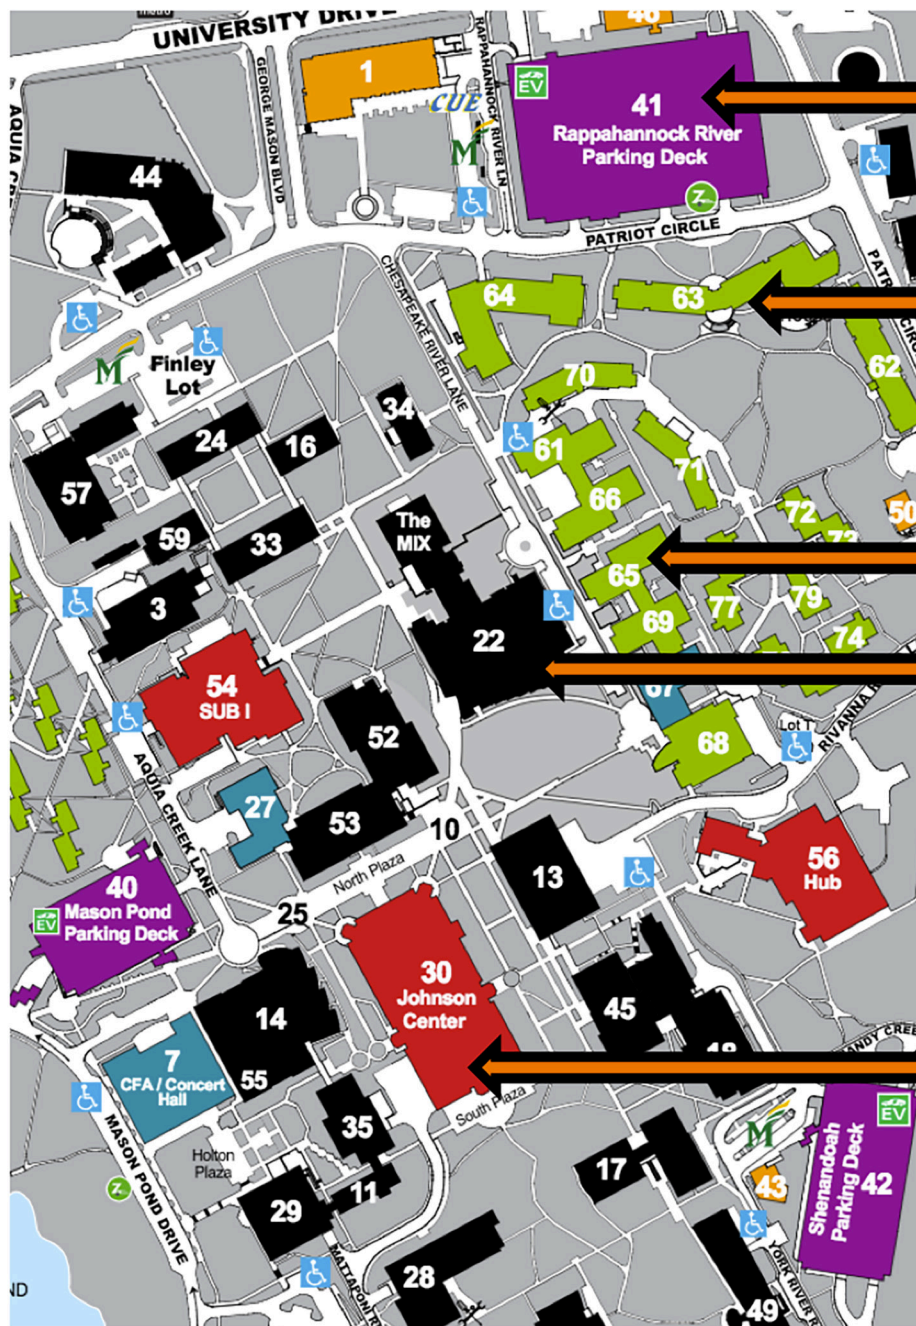

Quiet Room

Fenwick 5003 is our designated quiet room, but it is also used as a quiet reading room by the library community at large.

Mason Wi-Fi

1. On your device, select MASON as your wireless network
2. Go to your Web browser and enter itservices.gmu.edu
3. The self-registration portal will appear
4. Click on Create an Account and enter your information to complete self-registration

The authentication system will assign a username and password. Guests can also connect to the wired network via active jacks in the residence halls, classrooms, and public areas around campus.

41. Rappahanock River Parking Deck - C&W Parking

63. Hampton Roads - Conference Dorms

65. Piedmont Hall - Pick Up Dorm Keycard Here

22. Fenwick Library and The MIX - GRN, Thursday
Registration and workshops; Fri-Sun sessions in Fenwick

30. Johnson Center (the JC)
- Fri-Sun Registration, sessions, posters, keynotes, and banquet

JC, ground floor

JC, third floor

Fenwick, first floor

Fenwick, third floor

Fenwick, fourth floor

Local Food & Drink

Here are some of the conference planning committee's local favorite spots for food and drink around Fairfax. We'll post a larger list of crowd-sourced recommendations to the conference website (<http://candwcon.org/2018/dining>)

On Campus

Argo Tea in the lobby of Fenwick Library will be open 8-4 on Thursday and Friday.

University Mall

University Mall is just south of campus on the other side of Braddock Road. The main watering hole for faculty is Oh George! - Fat Tuesday is a dive bar, and there is also a decent grocery store (Giant).

Downtown Fairfax

Downtown Fairfax is about a mile from campus and is a 20 minute walk--just follow University Blvd north. All of these restaurants are in a three block area downtown:

21 Great American Bistro - Upscale American
The Auld Shebeen - Irish Pub
Bollywood Bistro - Indian Courtyard Thai - Thai
EastWind - Vietnamese/Pho
Erkin's Uyghur Cuisine - Uyghur/Chinese/Turkish
French Quarter Brasserie - New Orleans
High Side - Craft Beer & Asian Street Food
Hamrock's - American
Natalie's Baguette - French
Sister's Thai - Thai
The Wine House - Upscale American

Pre-Conference Workshops

Thursday, May 24th

Graduate Research Network

The Mix | 9:00 am - 4:00 pm

Janice Walker & Angela Haas

Roundtable discussions provide an ideal setting to share research with colleagues of similar interests. Conversations are facilitated by discussion leaders and work at any stage of completion, from conceptualization to publication, is welcome.

Note: Please see GRN Program for a detailed list of events.

Morning Workshops

~~MW.1 A Call to Action: Digital Rhetoric with Nonprofits (Canceled)-~~

Fenwick 1014A | 9:00 am - 12:00 pm

Aimée Knight, John J. Silvestro, Bill Wolff

This workshop features several models to involve academic courses with local nonprofits and community-based organizations via digital projects. Workshop participants are guided through the process of designing and developing their own project or assignment that responds to community-identified needs.

~~MW.2 PhronesisMOO: A Computers & Writing Conference Creative Community (Canceled)~~

Fenwick 1014B | 9:00 am - 12:00 pm

Kristopher Purzycki & Geoffrey Gimse

Following in the footsteps of past community spaces such as the Technorhetoric Bar and Grill on MediaMOO and Haynes and Holmervik's LinguaMOO, this workshop will focus on creating PhronesisMOO, a new multi-user domain (MUD) to be released to the C&W community.

MW.3 Creating 3D Games with the (Free, Open-source) Blender Game Engine

Fenwick 4010 | 9:00 am - 12:00 pm

Dennis Jerz

Using the free, open-source Blender Game Engine, participants will alter the default mechanics of simple arcade and maze games into an explicitly rhetorical digital artifact in order to examine the pedagogically useful ways this exercise can provide students with rhetorical mindfulness.

MW.4 Creating/Revising Digital Project Assignments to Facilitate Writing Transfer

Fenwick 3001 | 9:00 am - 12:00 pm

Crystal Fodrey & Meg Mikovits

This workshop explores the relationship between multimodal, digital assignments and teaching for transfer. Participants are asked to come prepared with a current or potential multimodal assignment that they will work with to collaboratively (re)envision assignments to incorporate transfer-facilitating practices.

MW.5 Evocative Objects Workshop: Re-imagining the Possibilities of Material Objects and Multimodal Composing

Fenwick 1014B | 9:00 am - 12:00 pm

Jody Shipka & Jason Markins

By composing complex 3D (analog) object-texts, participants can re-frame the tendency in the field to associate multimodality with digital media or visual-verbal 2D object-texts. By doing so, participants challenge the assumption that these 3D object-texts are arhetorical or purely expressive instead of valuable scholarly, academic artefacts.

Afternoon Workshops

AW.1 Learning Aurasma (Augmented Reality App) to Engage with Place, Play, and Practice

Fenwick 1014A | 1:00 pm - 4:00 pm

April Conway & Thomas Javier Castillo

Participants will work with augmented reality (AR) software (Aurasma) to create site-specific multimedia compositions. Participants should bring an iOS or Android phone or connected device and should plan to download the Aurasma AR app beforehand.

AW.2 Building User-Experience (UX) Research Centers

Fenwick 4010 | 1:00 pm - 4:00 pm

Laura Gonzales, Ann Shivers-McNair, Candice Lanius, Joy Robinson

Workshop leaders explore the role that user-experience (UX) research centers can play in a university setting. Participants discuss the practicalities of developing UX research centers on campus in order to promote relationships between these centers and universities, communities, and industries.

AW.3 Sparking Creativity: Digital Literacies for Your Invention-Based Composition Course

Fenwick 1014B | 1:00 pm - 4:00 pm

Jan Rune Holmevik, Amy Patterson, Chelsea Slack, Eric Hamilton, Shauna Chung, Shelly Lloyd, Victoria Houser

Participants receive hands-on experience with Adobe Spark and Behance, learning how to use these creative tools to transform their composition courses into unique invention-based learning experiences.

AW.4 Weaving Nonlinear Tales: Constructing Ludic Narratives with Twine 2.x

Fenwick 4008 | 1:00 pm - 4:00 pm

Anastasia Salter, Eric Murnane, Laura Moeller

Participants learn techniques for crafting nonlinear experiences using Twine, a beginner-friendly platform for creating interactive narrative games with an emphasis on translating design patterns into play. Participants are encouraged to bring a Mac or PC to complete their designs.

AW.5 Zork's Revenge: The Return of Interactive Texts to Writing Courses

Fenwick 4008 | 1:00 pm - 4:00 pm

Daniel Frank, Christopher Wyatt, Lauren Woolbright, Daniel Cox

Through playing examples of interactive fiction games and then learning how to use the tools to make them, participants create a basic interactive work, learning strategies for incorporating interactive fiction in assignments and curriculum for their own courses and writing programs.

NB: AW.4 and AW.5 Have Joined Forces and will both be in Fenwick 4008.

Opening Reception & Digital Project Showcase

The MIX | 5:00 pm - 7:00 pm

Enjoy hors d'oeuvres and libations along with a showcase of projects developed at the first KairosCamp (summer 2017).

Douglas Eyman, Showcase Chair

Erin Kathleen Bahl, Refracting Webtexts: Invention and Design in Composing Multimodal Scholarship

Chen Chen, #FOMO: Visualizing Disciplinary Lore on WPA-L

Patricia Fancher, Practice and Progress: Visualizing Community in America's Early Female Physicians

David Hochfelder, 40 Blocks, Thousands of Stories: Digitally Narrating Urban Renewal

Jen Justice & Wendi Sierra, Designing Scholarship: GradLife the RPG

Ben McCorkle & Jason Palmeri, Teaching with Television in English Journal Archives

Will Penman, Siri's Identity: How People on the Margins Use Parody YouTube Videos to Make Themselves Represented in AI

Mary P. Sheridan, Making Future Matters

Sarah Welsh, Delete this Article: Screenshots, Archives, and Digital Forgetting

Concurrent Session A

Friday, May 25th

9:00 am - 10:15 am

A.1 Playing with Multimodality in the Comp Classroom: An Assignment to Get the Process Started

Fenwick 1014B | Mini-Workshop

Dawn Mellinger

This mini-workshop is for instructors who want to contemporize their college classroom instruction using computer technology but don't know how or where to begin. Participants will develop a multimodal assignment and rubric.

A.2 Adventures in Phronetic Spaces: Graduate Students & Inter-institutional Horizontal Mentoring via Social Media Groups

Johnson Center A | Roundtable

Allegra Smith, Ashanka Kumari, Gavin Johnson, Christina Rowell, Kristie Ellison, Robin Farabedian

This roundtable reports and reflects on the horizontal mentoring experiences of participants in a PhD-student led Facebook group, including a content analysis of group posts that yields insights into the crowdsourcing practices, mentoring needs, networking opportunities, and knowledge circulation of participants.

A.3 Research as Play: Promoting Inquiry through Pedagogies of Play

JC-B | Roundtable

Trenia Napier, Courtne Morin, Emily Hensley, Rachel Winter

The ACRL Framework for Information Literacy for Higher Education (2016) sees information literacy as a metaliteracy organized around six threshold concepts; one of these concepts, Research as Inquiry, can be used to situate research in theories and pedagogies of play.

A4. Twitter, #metoo, and Toxic Masculinity

Fenwick 4010 | Panel

#metoo: Resistance as a Mode of Attunement

Bryan Jones

The Risks and Opportunities of #MeToo

Caroline Dadas

It Reeks Like a Boy's Locker Room: Twitter's Digital Aphorisms and Toxic Masculinity

Rory Lee

Bryan Jones uses Bakhtin's concept of the carnivalesque to show how #metoo disrupts dominance through the violation of hierarchies; Caroline Dadas presents interview findings to show how marginalized populations use social media for consciousness-raising; and Rory Lee highlights the ways the tweet makes possible a digital manifestation of toxic masculinity.

A.5 Emotions, Bodies, Embodiment

Fenwick 3001 | Panel

Digital Composing (with) Bodies and Emotions:

Revisiting 'Deep Embodiment'

Rich Shivenor

XM: Enacting the QueerOS

Abbie Levesque

Meeting Students Where They Are: Building Personalized Digital Assessment Tools

Andrew Famiglietti & Robin Wharton

Rich Shivenor argues for a deeper understanding of the practices and affective dimensions of digital scholarship; Abbie Levesque focuses on the implications of building a QueerOS in the form of an XML system for qualitative coding; and Andrew Famiglietti and Robin Wharton show-case software they developed to support their writing courses.

A.6 Cellphones and Selfies

Fenwick 4008 | Panel

Reclaiming My Time: Selfies as Ekphrastic Hope

Bonnie Kyburz

Writing for Mobile View: How Cellphones Encourage Students to Explore Metacognition and Flexibility

Catherine Forsa

Bonnie Kyburz describes selfies based on Mitchell's concept of "ekphrastic hope" and Catherine Forsa demonstrates how to foster flexibility and metacognition when students compose texts for cellphones' "mobile view."

A.7 Gaming and First-Year Composition

Fenwick 1014A | Panel

Using Video Games to Teach and Assess Audience and Revision in First-Year Composition

Kenton Howard

Harnessing Video Game Rhetoric

Grayson Sanders

The Game is Afoot: Learning to Play the Life of the Mind

Philip Choong & Sami Atassi

Kenton Howard shows a Composition I module he created based on the video game Organ Trail, a "retro zombie survival game"; Grayson Sanders explores the possibilities of video games as rhetoric, focusing on the "magic circle" of play; and Philip Choong and Sami Atassi describe their use of the social deduction game The Resistance in a composition course.

A.8 "Always in the Process of Becoming": Phronesis in/as Writing Studies Research

JC-C | Panel

Kelly Moreland, Lauren Garskie, Sara Austin

Located in their current research on TA preparation, feminist pedagogy, and informal writing spaces, the panelists share learning (and) experiences that shape our habits and values within both personal identities and research.

A.9 Creating a Culture of Accessible Teaching Practices

JC-D | Panel

Kirstin Bone, Melissa Green, Sara Maurice Whitver

Drawing on tenets of Universal Design for Learning and Universal Design for Instruction (UDL/UDI), this panel offers three inter-related case studies for creating a culture of accessible learning practices both within and in support of the composition classroom.

A.10 Methodology as Phronesis: Teaching and Learning Research as Embodied Practice

JC-E | Panel

How do I do Research, Again?: Phronetic Reflections on Co-teaching Methodology while Dissertating

Julie Lindquist

Research Is Hard: Making the Visible the Embodied Work of Learning Methodology

Les Hutchinson

Learning to Learn, and Learn Again: Reflections on Methodology, Pedagogy, and Collaboration

Maria Novotny

This panel considers how to teach and learn methodology as a practice of phronesis: 1) as researchers at different moments in our careers (one grad student writing a dissertation, one post-dissertation, and one senior faculty person); and 2) as collaborators in the development and delivery of a graduate research methodology course.

A.11 Planning for Change, Building in Redundancy: Preserving our C &W Archives

JC-F | Panel

Ashley Hall, James Purdy, Jennifer Marlow, Michael Day, Naomi Silver (Chair)

This panel focuses on our Computers and Writing community's efforts to recover, reconstruct, and re-vision the online archive of its thirty-five years of historical artifacts. We will describe archive, note what has been recovered, and ask for suggestions for reconstruction.

A.12 Teaching Phronesis: Scaffolding Knowledge Application and Ethical Judgement in Digital Spaces

JC-G | Panel

The Bait and Switch: Covert Research Assignments and Skills Transfer

Casey McArdle

Playing to Learn: Immersive Learning and Applied Knowledge

Kate Birdsall

Joining the Conversation: Reflection and Presentation

Kate Fedewa

Our exploration asks educators to help students develop and ethically apply “street smarts” as they work on projects in professional writing. Each speaker takes a specific verb as their focus, beginning with “research,” moving through “play” and “transfer,” and ending with “create.”

A.13 You’re Using What to Teach What?! When Unconventional Pedagogical Methods Actually Work

JC-239 | Panel

Memos, Messaging, and Mmmm, Brains!: An Apocalyptic Business Writing Course

Elkie Burnside

Hey What?! and HeLa: Race, Ethics, and Science Writing Pedagogy

Harley Ferris

From Anti-Suffrage Cartoons to Muslim Superheroines: Teaching Feminism through Comics

Rachael Ryerson

When instructors stumble upon ideas “so crazy they just might work,” students and teachers alike can experience unexpected gains that more traditional, accepted practices fail to yield. This panel explores three instances in which teachers applied gamification, creative non-fiction, and comics respectively to challenging undergraduate content with positive results.

A.14 Social Justice Working Group

Johnson Center Gold Room | SIG

Kristin Arola, Samantha Blackmon, Kristine Blair, Angela Haas, Donnie Sackey, Emi Stuemke, Melanie Yergeau

The Social Justice Working Group seeks to foreground discussion of social justice in technology in order to build alliances while honoring differences. We extend special welcome to concerns and conversations surrounding the effects of schemes of normativity and tensions that arise along the axes of ability, identity, and access.

A.UGRS Undergraduate Research Symposium

George's @ the JC | Panel

Emoji's Effect on Digital Communication

Alexa Olah, Monmouth University

Brittany Cote, Monmouth University

Sarah Baker, Monmouth University

The increasing use of emojis, or small digital images used alongside or in place of text suggests that people are connecting to these images more personally than they are connecting with words alone. The panelists examine millennials' use of emojis and emojis' connection to millennials' unique childhoods, the similarity and representation of human facial features and expressions in emoji, and the role of visual communication, including emoji, infographics, concept maps, and infodoodles, in digital communication.

Concurrent Session B

Friday, May 25th
10:30 am - 11:45 am

B.1 Facilitating Undergraduate Research in the Humanities through the “Continuous Course Lab”

Fenwick 1014A | Mini-Workshop
Halcyon Lawrence, Sarah Lozier-Laiola

This workshop introduces the Continuous Course Lab (CCL) model, which integrates long-form humanities research projects directly into the learning outcome, assessment, and structure of an undergraduate course.

B.2 EnTwined Storytelling: Bringing Interactive Creative Nonfiction into the Classroom

Fenwick 4010 | Mini-Workshop
Eric Murnane, Laura Moeller

This mini-workshop invites participants to explore their own vulnerabilities by making interactive creative nonfiction using the open source tool Twine.

B.3 Behind the Scenes of Digital Aggression Research: Identity, Method, Action, and Self-Care

JC-A | Roundtable
Erika Sparby, Katherine DeLuca, Kristine Blair, Rachael Sullivan, Samantha Blackmon, Stephanie Weaver

We ask, What happens when a researcher has chosen to research hostile spaces—particularly spaces that are hostile to her own identity/ies? Each speaker has experience with social media (including violent anti-woman discourses, political campaign imagery, and alt-right narratives); gaming, sexuality, and safety; and/or developing research strategies that include productive action as a key component.

B.4 Western Democracy, Social Media, and Trolls: Where to Start

JC-B | Roundtable

Estee Beck, Liza Potts, Michael Trice, Douglas Walls

The 2016 election and the influence of both foreign powers and nonhuman composers have brought a series of challenges to western democracies. We discuss how digital rhetoricians and technical communicators must begin to leverage their expertise to understand and help shed light on these issues.

B.5 Riding as Writing: How Cycling Allows New Writing(s)

Fenwick 4008 | Panel

Bill Hart-Davidson, David Rieder, Drew Stowe, Lydia Wilkes

As digital technologies continue to develop they create new ways of creating meaning. By considering the ways that various technologies impact cycling we can also consider the ways that leisure, sport, health, and embodiment contribute to our ways of being in the world.

B.6 Teaching Coding/Writing Code

Fenwick 1014B | Panel

Pedacodegy: Toward Best Practices for Phronetic Coding Instruction in Postsecondary Education

Jim Nugent

Remediating Technologies, Remediating Writers: The Many Selves of Code-Writers

Elisa Finlay

Jim Nugent addresses coding in postsecondary education; and Elisa Findlay presents a qualitative study regarding the construction and remediation of the writerly self.

B.7 “Fail Fast, Fail Often:” Perspectives on Risk-Taking from Agile Methodology to the Writing Classroom

JC-C | Panel

Gamifying Experiences of Student “Failure” to Motivate Creativity and Innovation

Aaron Lanser

Teacher (Fear of) Failure: Teaching as Adaptation & Problem Solving

Mary Stewart

Defining Student Failure: Student and Faculty

Perspectives on Digital Tools and Class Performance

Jenae Cohn

This panel applies the Agile Methodology of “fail fast, fail often” to digital writing classrooms: how do we make experiences of failure playful and in what ways do we apply playful pedagogies to institutionalize an acceptance of failure as a part of learning?

B.8 Multimodal Hip-Hop and Transforming Writing Studies

JC-E | Panel

Laquana Cooke, Regina Duthely, Todd Craig

Hip-hop’s deployment of audio, alphabetic, and visual rhetorical strategies as an embodied composing practice should serve as a model for the radical possibilities of digital writing studies.

B.9 Playing with Twitter: The Practical Wisdom of Social Media Research

JC-F | Panel

Dan Anderson, Grant Glass, Desiree Dighton

This panel will consider how we might account for and reimagine the instability of data-based argument; how social media data relates with online and offline culture; and how this data might serve as an intentional resource for scholars, activists, and students.

B.10 Teaching Technology in Panem (or, How to Teach the Digital on an Analog Campus)

JC-G | Panel

Ethics of Accessibility and Video Game Pedagogy

Jen Justice

Phones Are Technically Computers Now, Right?

Patricia Poblete

But Students Can Gust Go to the Library?

Tiffany Carter

While the panel enjoys and employs video games, social media, and multiple-media projects in class, we also look askance at the underlying technological assumptions often made in the composition classroom and will offer a number of possible multimedia projects that instructors can use regardless of the technology available.

B.11 Both/And: Digital, Analog, and Physical Computing

JC-239 | Panel

From Design Thinking to Design Doing: Phronesis in Maker Pedagogy

Jason Tham

Analog Poiesis Meets Digital Phronesis: Crafting Texts that Intentionally Blur the Lines between Digital and Analog

Jason Markins

Understanding the Digital Through the Anti-Digital: Letterpress in Writing Research and Teaching

Devon Cook

In this panel, presenters re-evaluate the implications of design “thinking” and how we might theorize an improved, action-driven approach to innovation; discuss the materiality of composing circulation and the crafting of texts that intentionally blur the lines between digital and analog; and report on findings of a study of letterpress users composing practices with implications for research of writing via digital technologies.

B.12 Coding/Learning/Writing: A Cultural Digital Rhetorical Gathering

JC Gold Room | Panel

Coding Land Relationality in Thunderbird Strike

Elizabeth LaPensee

Learning Cherokee Online: Digital Survivance and Language Revitalization

Catheryn Jennings

Writing Culture: Powwow Bunnies and Rhetorical Velocity

Kristin Arola

Interrogating the coding and design of the video game Thunderbird Strike, the ways one learns a heritage language through digital spaces, and one Ojibwe woman's attempt to rhetorically intervene in a social media attack on her cultural claims, this panel shows how cultural and digital rhetoric can, and should, intersect with our theories, pedagogies, and practices.

B.13 Digital Archive of Literacy Narratives (DALN) Organizational Meeting

Fenwick 3001 | Panel

Ben McCorkle & Michael Harker

This organizational meeting, open to contributing partners, affiliates, and any other interested parties, will include a short presentation on the state of the Digital Archive of Literacy Narratives (DALN).

B.UGRS Undergraduate Research Symposium

George's @ the JC | Panel

Thought Processes Behind YouTube and its Composition Methods

Simon Cruz, Monmouth University

Digital Censorship in the Social Media World

FeiFei Ma, University of Maryland, Baltimore County

Keynote & Lunch

Friday, May 25th

12:00 pm - 2:00 pm

Dr. Elizabeth Losh

Hastag Feminism and Its Discontents

JC - Dewberry | Keynote

Celebration and criticism of so-called “hashtag feminism” rarely addresses the hashtag itself as an artifact or tries to locate its place in the history of information design. Although the story of the hashtag tends to be associated with Silicon Valley invention myths or power users like celebrities, the hashtag is actually the result of accreted sets of practices and invisible labor involving negotiating competing claims about identity, ownership, and naming conventions.

Elizabeth Losh is an Associate Professor of English and American Studies at William and Mary with a specialization in New Media Ecologies. Before coming to William and Mary, she directed the Culture, Art, and Technology Program at the University of California, San Diego. She is a core member and former co-facilitator of the feminist technology collective FemTechNet, which offers a Distributed Open Collaborative Course, a blogger for Digital Media and Learning Central, and part of the international organizing team of The Selfie Course. She currently serves on the Executive Council of the Modern Language Association.

Concurrent Session C

Friday, May 25th

2:15 pm - 3:30 pm

C.1 Electronics Composition: Paper-based Circuit Crafting and Physical-Digital Texts

Fenwick 1014A | Mini-Workshop

John Walter

This mini-workshop introduces paper-based circuit crafting as a form of material composition, detailing how paper-based circuit crafting has been and might be used in composition classrooms; participants will learn to craft three basic paper-based circuits of their own.

C.2 Feminist Methodologies That Engage Emergent Social Justice Issues in the Digital Writing Classroom

Fenwick 1014B | Mini-Workshop

Julie Bates, Sarah Warren-Riley, Lisa Phillips

Panelists present a case study arising from an of-the-moment social and environmental justice exigency; panelists will share potential pedagogical strategies for bringing the issue into the computer-mediated classroom. Participants will leave with ideas for in-class activities and research projects.

C.3 Writer/Designer: Making Multimodal Projects in Your Classes

Fenwick 4010 | Mini-Workshop

Cheryl Ball, Jennifer Sheppard, Kristin Arola

This session, part roundtable, part workshop, takes its exigence from the co-presenters' second edition of the textbook, Writer/Designer: A Guide to Making Multimodal Projects. Presenters will work with participants on areas of specific need in relation to the book's client- and process-based approaches.

C.4 Design Thinking and Game Design: A Productive Relationship for Writing Pedagogy?

JC-A | Roundtable

Sarah Lozier-Laiola, Joy Robinson, Laquana Cooke, Lisa Dusenberry

In this roundtable, we explore design thinking through gaming as a way to introduce ambiguity by considering the following questions: How do we define and interpret games design and development processes used in academic settings? How do we prepare the classroom space to support the design thinking activities through game development? What are the best ways to introduce the ambiguity required for design thinking through game development in the classroom? How do we infuse productive failure opportunities as an essential part of design thinking in the classroom?

C.5 Representing Diversity in Digital Research: Digital Feminist Ethics and Resisting Dominant Normatives

JC-Gold Room | Roundtable

Ashanka Kumari, Chris Lindgren, Kyle Larson, Les Hutchinson, Sweta Baniya

The speakers in this roundtable consider how their engaged practices of feminist ethics have come up against specific dominant normatives. Privileging the experiences of women of color, they question the embodied relationship they have with their research participants, and offer their methodological approaches for addressing ethical challenges that have surfaced through conducting their research in both digital and non-digital spaces.

C.6 Reading (and the) Interface

Fenwick 3001 | Panel

Guerilla Wondering: Language-Modifying Chrome Extensions to Hack the Interface of Web Reading

Elizabeth Chamberlain

Quantifying Reader Response: Towards a Mixed Reading of Media Experiences

John Murray

Social Annotation and Layered Readings in Composition

Michelle Sprouse

Elizabeth Chamberlain discusses writing a language-modifying extension to chrome; John Murray discusses the interplay of physiological signals and machine learning; and Michelle Sprouse discusses social annotation, primarily in the context of first-year composition.

C.7 Activism in Virtual Publics

Fenwick 4008 | Panel

Sex in Networked Publics

Sandra Nelson

Design Justice: Creating Change with Communities

Aimée Knight

Locating an Ethic of Dissent in the Virtual Town Hall

Kristina Fennelly

Sandra Nelson considers the ways Facebook and FetLife operate as contrasting digital publics through site policy and interface options; Aimée Knight explores how we can use a Design Justice Philosophy in our teaching and research; and Kristina Fennelly examines “argument culture” in social media forums like Facebook and Twitter.

C.8 “Translation Moments” as Phronesis in Classrooms and Communities

JC-B | Panel

Cristina Sanchez-Martin, Laura Gonzales, Elvira Carrizal-Dukes

Drawing on recent work that highlights the importance of linguistic diversity in technical communication and computers and composition, this panel situates the activities of translation as sites of innovation and rhetorical power.

C.9 Digital Citizenship at the Crossroads: Intersections between Phronesis, Classrooms, and the Internet

JC-C | Panel

Scott Caddy, James Neel, David DeVine, Ibrahim Alaswad

This panel addresses the integration of digital humanities and games theory into traditional and “hybrid” literature and composition classrooms.

C.10 Diversifying Digital Civics: Video Games, Participation, and Interface at Three Different Institutions

JC-D | Panel

Civic Rhetoric and Digital Participation: Civilizing Social Media One Class at a Time

Alice Henton

Designing Civic Interfaces to Reduce Online Harassment

John Gallagher

Across the Digital Divide: Civic and Rhetorical Agency in Digital Game Studies

Rebecca Tarsa

Our panel explores the intersection of civic engagement and student experience with a look at three different assignments taught at three different institutions. Each panelist discusses the challenges of situating civic rhetoric within a specific digital context.

C.11 Digital Rhetoric: Invention

JC-E | Panel

Practice Pataphysical: Rhetorical Invention and Find/Replace Technologies

Paul Muhlhauser

Software Libraries as Computational Topoi

Kevin Brock

Customizable Phronesis: The Making of Writing

Caleb Andrew Milligan

Paul Muhlhauser discusses how pataphysics, or the science of imaginary solutions, can be used for disruption and invention; Kevin Brock considers software libraries-as-topoi; and Caleb Andrew Milligan demonstrates a project to construct a personalized writing apparatus using Raspberry Pie.

C.12 Preaching What We Practice: How We Apply Our Artistic Selves to Our Writing Instruction

JC-F | Panel

Christopher Ritter, Patrick Johnson, Jim Haendiges

Speaker 1 shows how to use Microsoft OneNote to teach listening, reading, and writing skills; Speaker 2 will discuss how playing music contributes to teaching writing principles; and Speaker 3 will share how his experiences writing screenplays and comic scripts shape his conversations about writing with students, peer tutors, and faculty.

C.13 The Machine Rhetorics of Bots

JC-G | Panel

Praise and Blame of Social Media Bots: Rhetorical agency and ethics in the age of algorithms

Aaron Geiger

A Question of Phronesis: Does a Chatbot Talk to Itself?

Marcia Bost

Robot Writing Teachers: 3 Artifacts

Jimmy Butts

Aaron Geiger discusses bots and rhetorical agency between rhetors and technology; Macia Bost considers theories of digital agents' agency in the context of definitions set by sociologists Mustafa Emirbayer and Ann Mische; and Jimmy Butts demonstrates several approaches to algorithmic textual generation in the classroom.

C.14 Digital Phronesis and Technofeminism

JC-239 | Panel

~~Writing and Living in Digital Spaces: A Case Study of Saudi Females' Use of Social Media~~

~~Manea Alharbi (Cancelled)~~

Feminist Approaches to Digital Phronesis: Fostering Girls' Digital Literacies at Tech Camp

Carrie Gant

TechnoFeminist, Citizen, Activist Writer/Designer?

Danielle Nicole DeVoss

Manea Alharbi presents findings from a case study of Saudi females' use of social media; Carrie Grant shares findings from a study conducted with a for-profit girls' technology camp; and Danielle Nicole DeVoss discusses what a technofeminist, citizen, activist writer/designer might look like from rhetorical theory, design studies, and rhetoric and writing perspectives.

C.UGRS Undergraduate Research Symposium

George's @ the JC | Panel

Digital Videos as Required Writing Assignments in College-Level English Courses

Skyler Schack, Monmouth University

Usefulness of Discussion Boards in College Composition Courses

Charlee Helmstetter, Monmouth University

The Digital Humanities and How It Has Integrated Technology and Literature: A Clarification

Anthony Varlese, Monmouth University

Concurrent Session D

Friday, May 25th

3:45 pm - 5:00 pm

D.1 From Fake News to Predatory Journal Platforms: Reclaiming the Lost Art of Source Evaluation

Fenwick 1014A | Mini-Workshop

Norah Fahim, Chris Kamrath, Jenae Cohn

This workshop is designed to address the rise of two parallel phenomena affecting our students' research practices: Fake News and Predatory Journals

D.2 Between IRL and Digital Spaces: CUNY's CompComm Faculty Playfully Collaborating

JC-A | Roundtable

Andréa Stella, Anna Zeemont, Jesse Rice-Evans, Lindsey Albracht, Seth Graves

This roundtable will discuss how our organization—open to both graduate students, instructors, and writing program administrators—fostered a variety of cross-campus digital culture and digitally facilitated mentorship projects by informal structures of “practical wisdom” and peer mentorship.

D.3 Place/Interface: Situating Space as Ways of Knowing, Accessing, and Remembering

Fenwick 1014B | Panel

Krystin Gollihue, Ragan Glover-Rijkse, Mai Xiong

The first presenter examines the interactions between local and colonizing depictions of a World Heritage Site in Laos. The second presenter examines the gentrification of textile mills in central North Carolina. The final presentation examines issues of disability and mobility in rural spaces.

D.4 Institutional Infrastructure for Digital Writing

Fenwick 3001 | Panel

Infrastructure in the Contemporary University

Courtney Werner

City Tech's OpenLab as Digital Writing

Jill Belli

MOOCs Beyond the Dead: The Rapid Rise, Fall, and (Fuzzy) Future of Massive Online Open Courses

Steve Krause

Courtney Werner discusses changes in education since Devoss, Grabill, and Cushman's 2005 study "Infrastructure and Composing: the When of New-Media Writing"; Jill Belli reviews a taxonomy created for composing activities in OpenLab; and Steve Krause examines the rise and fall of Massive Online Open Courses.

D.5 The Phronesis of Teachers of Color: Intersectional Approaches to Technology in the Writing Classroom

Fenwick 4010 | Panel

From the top of the Dome: HipHop Pedagogical Sensibilities in the Writing Classroom

Victor Del Hierro

Making Way Outta No Way: Tapping on Students' Classroom Tactics to Enable a Pedagogy of Access in an HBCU

Esther Milu

Using Feminist Rhetorical Practices to Make and Keep Space: A Teacher of Color's Reflections on Developing "Counter-Courses"

Ronisha Browdy

In this panel, presenters discuss the complex pedagogical space of being a person of color in a classroom of students that is increasingly diverse. Each presenter will discuss examples of innovations built from the relationship between their embodied experience and their students in their writing classrooms.

D.6 Experiments in Transductive Writing and Rhetoric with the Kinect

Fenwick 4008 | Panel

Matthew Halm, Steven Smith, David Rieder

This panel will present a series of experiments using the Kinect sensor to transduce the human body to create digital forms of writing and rhetoric.

D.7 A Polyphony of Voices, Images, and Methods: Designing and Enacting Today's Digital Writing Research

JC-B | Panel

Soundwriting as Research Method: Mediating Undergraduate Discourse Studies

Crystal VanKooten

A Methodology of Interdependence through Video as Method

Christina Rowell

Capturing a Dynamic Whole: Multimodal Methods for Mapping Composing Processes

Jennifer Buckner

Speaker one will explore soundwriting as research method through analysis of an undergraduate multimodal portfolio. Speaker two will examine the use of video within qualitative research as a tool for data collection, analysis, and presentation. Speaker three will discuss the use of video, audio, and screen capture technologies for collecting data on multimodal composing.

D.8 Engaging Pedagogies for Student Success in Undergraduate Service Courses

JC-C | Panel

Jill Heney, Debra Purdy, Heidi Naylor

This panel presents two studies on student participation and engagement: implications from an NSF-funded study of introductory technical and professional communication (TPC) courses as well as findings from a study of an on-line first-year writing course.

D.9 Digital Accessibility

JC-D | Panel

Course Management Systems as Sponsors of Accessibility

Jathan Day

Cripping Metadata

Melanie Yergeau

Digitizing the Writing Process through Assistive and Augmentative Communication Devices

Margaret Moore

Jathan Day repurposes Brandt's 1998 concept of literacy sponsorship to examine how course management systems position and promote themselves as sponsors of accessibility; Melanie Yergeau argues that the classification schema of metadata may perpetuate stereotypes of disability; and Meg Moore demonstrates the full cycle of the writing process through assistive technologies.

D.10 On-the-Spot Assemblages: Moving Literacies Across Digital and Physical Spaces

JC-E | Panel

Literacy, Mobility, and Collaborative Writing on the 7 Train

Ana Cortes Lagos

Traveling Theories: WAC Meets Digital Rhetoric in a Transnational Learning Space

Brice Nordquist

Prison Circuits: To Discern, Learn, and Compose (or Connect)

Patrick Berry

Sharing a framework oriented to interdependencies of material, embodied, digital, and communicative mobilities (Sheller, 2014), this panel offers more nuanced accounts of knowing, learning, and practical wisdom as literate actors and artifacts are revised and re-coordinated across space, time, and media through a series of case studies extending across spheres of activity—from subways to cellblocks, from college classrooms in Chile to the streets of Harlem.

D.11 Interactive Fiction and Hypertexts: Experiences with “Text Adventure” Authoring Tools in Writing Courses

JC-F | Panel

Working Within the Space of Interactive Fiction: Passion, Authorship, and Remix

Daniel Frank

The Natural Accommodation of Interactive Fiction: How Text-Based Games Remove Barriers to Participation

Christopher Wyatt

Possibility and Play: Game Writing and Game Studies as Liberating Praxis

Morgan Read-Davidson

Quest with Class: Interactive Fictions and Diversity

Lauren Woolbright

Panelists discuss their experiences with using interactive fiction (IF) and hypertext authoring tools within writing courses and across the curriculum, offering suggestions for effective student projects.

D.12 The Phronesis of Social Media Research: Findings on Digital Discourse, Citizenship, and Ethics

JC-G | Panel

Findings on Social Media Use in Undergraduate Classrooms

Stephanie Vie

Social Media Composing for Digital Citizenship

Jennifer Miller

Studying Discourse Disruption through Hashtags:

#OrlandoStrong and Digital Rhetoric

Bill Wolff

Archives, Bots, Fake Accounts, and the Emerging Ethical Complexities of Social Media Research

Nicholas DeArmas

Contemporary scholarship in writing studies has considered social media from various angles, including how it may be incorporated into the classroom and academia in general. This panel seeks to continue discussions of how social media serve as a viable and robust site for cultivating meaning and identification through practitioner and student research.

D.13 Preservation, Curation, and Researching in the Archives

JC-239 | Panel

Preserving Digital Scholarship: Variable Media Questionnaire Case Studies

John Walter

Unseen Anxieties: Uncovering Technology Tensions in a Hidden Archive

Ian Golding

Feminist Archiving as Phronesis: Archive of Our Own and Creating Space for Interactive Digital Curation

Lee Hibbard

This panel discusses preservation, curation, and the boundaries of digital archiving and curation processes. John Walter uses the Variable Media Questionnaire, a preservation heuristic developed by the Guggenheim and the Langlois Foundation for ephemeral and multimodal art; Ian Golding reexamines the history of technology within the 1990s composition class through a previously undiscovered cache of twenty year-old writing student portfolios; and Lee Hibbard describes feminist archiving as phronetic process, highlighting the work of the website Archive of Our Own (AO3).

D.14 Cs The Day Card Game Playtesting

Fenwick 4001 | Play

Wendi Sierra

Cs the Day: The Card Game pits players against each other to compete for tenure. Teach classes, serve on committees, and desperately try to get the right combination of cards to hit that holy grail of tenure: a monograph!

Note: play testing CtD: TCG will not grant you tenure at your home institution.

D.UGRS Undergraduate Research Symposium

George's @ the JC | Panel

3D Printing and the Importance of STEM and Humanities Collaboration in Utilizing Emerging Technological Capabilities

Madison Jewell, Wright State University

Exploring the Ethical Concerns of Brain-Computer Interface (BCI) and Transhumanism: A Choose-Your-Own-Adventure Webgame

Haley Shea Barfield, University of North Georgia

Awards Banquet

Friday, May 25th

6:00 pm - 8:00 pm

JC - Dewberry | Dinner and Awards

Join the Computers and Writing Community as we recognize the outstanding achievements in our field.

Awards and Announcements:

Hawisher and Selfe Caring for the Future Award

Kairos Awards

Computers and Composition Awards

Digital Rhetoric Collaborative Book Prize

7C Awards

Announcement of the 2019 Computers and Writing Conference!

Friday Night - Bowling! 8:30pm - Midnight

Bowl America

5615 Guinea Rd, Fairfax, VA 22032

Concurrent Session E

Saturday, May 26th

9:00 am - 10:15 am

E.1 Text Visualization Tools

Fenwick 1014A | Mini-Workshop

Madeleine Sorapure

This hands-on mini-workshop will introduce participants to a number of tools (most free) that allow them to analyze and visualize text in different ways. During the workshop, participants will be able to use the tools in order to visualize texts of their choosing.

E.2 Meaning-Making and Randomization in E-Poetry Machines

Fenwick 1014B | Mini-Workshop

Amanda Hill & Laura Moeller

This mini-workshop will begin with a discussion of two e-poetry projects, both of which piece together moments of coded pattern and randomness to create new digital poetic works, created by the facilitators. The workshop includes an interactive experiment where the audience members engage in the building of a new poem as if they were coded computer machines.

E.3 Digital Distribution and Programmatic Progression: An Examination of Ideology in a Badging Initiative

JC-A | Roundtable

Alan Reid, Becky Childs, Denise Paster, J. Daniel Hasty

Coastal Carolina University recently launched a digital badging program designed to support students as they enter the university setting as readers and writers. Four key contributors to this badging initiative highlight the ways this digital delivery system brings a theoretically driven philosophy of language to composition classes across our campus.

E.4 Teaching with Technology in Global Contexts

Fenwick 4010 | Panel

International Students' Perceptions of Mediated P2P
Review: Subjectivities and Experience

Douglas Walls & Nupoor Jalindre

Technology in the Teaching and Learning of FYC in Ghana

Stephen Boakye

Doug Walls and Nupoor Jalindre discuss the effectiveness of peer-review pedagogies in a tech comm course populated by international and native language learners; Stephen Boakye presents findings from a study of a Ghanaian university's Communicative Skills (FYC) program.

E.5 Prosumers: Fan Fiction and Wikipedia

Fenwick 3001 | Panel

Living & Writing Fandom: Affordances and Consequences of Fan Platforms

Rachel Atherton

The Pedagogical Benefits of Fanfiction: Assigning a Fanfiction Writing Project

Erika Romero

Why Wikipedia Matters to the Humanities

Melanie Kill

Rachel Atherton uses feminist and queer theories in an autoethnographic analysis of fanfiction; Erika Romero argues that instructors should include fan writing practices in the writing classes; and Melanie Kill suggests that Wikipedia could benefit from contributions of scholars in the humanities.

E.6 Strategies for Digital Advocacy, Access, and Empowerment

Fenwick 4008 | Panel

A Sign of Digital Embodiment in Online Videos

Janine Butler

#AcademicAbleism and the (In)Accessibility of Digital Writing

Allison Hitt

Embodied Experiences, Disembodied Compositions

Sushil K. Oswal

This panel examines how disabled users mark their embodied difference in digital spaces, which is not only embodied but also disabled in exciting and fruitful ways. As the panelists will illustrate, this disabling of the digital provides avenues for activism and advocacy that are accessible to divergent mindbodies.

E.7 User-Centered + Design

JC-B | Panel

Improving International Students' Experiences in Online Writing Courses: A User-Centered Approach to Culturally Responsive Interface and Instructional Design

Bethany Monea

Not Idiots Anymore: Users as Creative Innovators

Isidore Dorpenyo

Writing with Users in Mind: Multimodal Composition as Design Research

Will Kurlinkus

Bethany Monea proposes a research-based strategy for enhancing cross-cultural interface and instructional design; Isidore Dorpenyo examines the redesign of a biometric technology manual for use in Ghanaian elections; and Will Kurlinkus draws on the field of design studies to describe a multimodal composition curriculum.

E.8 Abstract Transmediations: Transferable FYW Outcomes in the Digital Age

JC-C | Panel

Christopher Stuart, Brian Gaines, Victoria Houser, Jan Rune Holmevik

Clemson University's first-year composition (FYC) program conducted a pilot study means to test the viability of a fully digital writing course, exploring the implications of using creativity software, media theory, and traditional elements of argumentation.

E.9 Exploring Pedagogies for Synchronous Video Writing Instruction

JC-D | Panel

Collin Bjork, Kimberly Fahle, Shelley Rodrigo

Based on a combination of rhetorical theory, pedagogical research, and personal experiences, these presentations examine how pedagogues a) craft their digital teacherly ethos, b) select methods of discursive engagement, and c) assess the impact of synchronous participation.

E.10 Panel, Interrupted

JC-E | Panel

Sebastian Ivy, Amber Lee, Nathan DeProspero, Byron Hawk (Chair)

How does digital memory interrupt conceptions of human memory? How does the digital world interrupt power structures, sovereign forces, and conceptions of autonomy? How do processes of subjectivity function in digital economies? How do digital sonic compositions enable the creation and revision of collective identities? Working through these questions, the panel looks to theorize alternative ways of ethically composing and inhabiting the digital world.

E.11 Reading and Writing about Bodies and Technology: Imagining a Rhetorical Technofeminist Pedagogy

JC-F | Panel

Rhetorical Technofeminism in the First-Year Writing Class

Kaitlin Clinnin

Interdisciplinarity and Technofeminism: Teaching Fat Activism

Katherine DeLuca

Revising and Reenvisioning Classroom Practice from a Rhetorical Technofeminist Perspective

Katie Manthey

Building on work in intersectional, feminist rhetorics and technofeminism, this panel explores rhetorical technofeminism as a generative framework for praxis. Panelists will review their own classroom practices and experiences, connecting the theoretical concepts of rhetorical technofeminism to embodied, everyday praxis.

E.12 The Fallacies of Open: Participatory Design, Connected Learning, and The Pursuit of Radical Possibility

JC-G | Panel

Anna Smith, Christina Cantrill, Stephanie West-Puckett

The concept of “open” promises frictionless sharing of knowledge, knowledge pathways, and knowledge-making resources. Our analysis of emergent relationships in the National Writing Project’s Making Learning Connected MOOC (CLMOOC) suggests, however, that the “open” in “open learning” is a fallacy.

E.13 Cs The Day Card Game & TextJam Playtesting

Fenwick 4001 | Play

Wendi Sierra, Dan Frank

Join Wendi and Dan as they seek playtesters for their C&W community-developed games.

E.14 Digital Literacies

JC-239 | Panel

Digital Literacy as a Spectrum: Institutional Responsibility for Digital Outcome Implementation

Jennifer Hewerdine

The Podcast Voyager: Launching A Podcast Literacy Probe

Matthew Jacobson

The Politics of Literacy Instruction in Computers and Composition: An International Journal 1990-2015

Lynn Reid

Jennifer Hewerdine argues that institutions that implement digital literacy outcomes or digital outcomes of any kind have an ethical imperative to ensure access, infrastructure, and faculty and staff training; Matthew Jacobson introduces and launches a cultural probe—a design studies data gathering method—to help build podcast literacies; and Lynn Reid presents a qualitative analysis of Computers and Composition: An International Journal focused on how scholarship in the journal has contributed to disciplinary expertise regarding the politics of literacy instruction in higher education.

E.UGRS Undergraduate Research Symposium

George's @ the JC | Panel

"Some Very Fine People On Both Sides": Unpacking Reddit's Reactions to Charlottesville

Anthony Saylor, University of Maryland, Baltimore County

Partisan Memes for Political Dreams: A Look at How the Left and Right Harness the Internet's Power

Ashley Brooks, University of North Georgia – Gainesville

Political Discourse on Twitter Around the Government Shutdown

Willa Murphy, University of Maryland, Baltimore County

Concurrent Session F

Saturday, May 26th
10:30 am - 11:45 am

F.1 Memes and r/NoSleep: Digital Reactions to the 2017 Election with Pedagogical Implications

Fenwick 1014A | Mini-Workshop

Rachel Winter & Emily Hensley

This interactive workshop will focus on the phronesis of Twitter and r/NoSleep users, who have combined their learned knowledge about the production and dissemination of digital media with their lived experience regarding the 2016/2017 elections in the US.

~~F.2 Developing Digital Humanities Programs within Existing English Departments (Canceled)~~

Fenwick 1014B | Mini-Workshop

Stephanie Hedge

This workshop takes a programmatic approach to incorporating Digital Humanities courses and tracks into existing English programs, offering strategies for developing program goals, pitching DH to administrators and (sometimes) reluctant faculty, building strong courses and sequencing, and supporting faculty and student digital research.

F.3 Konsult: An Invention-Based Learning Model Sparked by Digital Creativity

JC-A | Roundtable

Jan Rune Holmevik, Amy Patterson, Chelsea Slack, Eric Hamilton, Shauna Chung, Shelley Lloyd, Victoria Houser

This roundtable focuses on Gregory Ulmer's concept of the Konsult, a new site of electrated learning that brings students into attunement with the disaster. Six Konsults will be presented and discussed from both a scholarly and a creative perspective.

F.4 Online Writing Instruction

Fenwick 4010 | Panel

Beer Deconstructed: Designing Short Weekly Writing Assignments in a Fully Online Beer and Brewing Course

Alex Rockey & Kem Saichaie

Compose, Design, Educate: Developing a Digital Rhetorics Themed Online Writing Course

Allegra Smith

Friends Don't Lie: Eleven, Why Fetishizing Community In OWI Is Disingenuous, and What We Can Do About It

Kevin Eric DePew

Alex Rockey and Kem Saichaie share their experience in designing short, weekly, writing assignments for a fully online course; Allegra Smith traces the design and implementation of an online first-year composition course at an R1 institution; and Kevin Eric DePew discusses OWI Principle 11, and questions whether discussion board pedagogies foster communal engagement.

F.5 Agency, Resistance, and the Case Against Social Media

Fenwick 3001 | Panel

"The Truth Is [Not] Out There": Rethinking Student and Instructor Agency in the Age of Government Surveillance

David Maynard

Assembling the Phronetic Case Against Social Media

Stephen McElroy

Design and Usability Methods to Combat Fake News

Nupoor Jalindre

David Maynard suggests that despite technical advances such as end-to-end encryption, networked digital technology constitutes an alien frontier in which instructor and student agency remains tenuous; Stephen McElroy argues that it may be in your best interests, and in the best interests of us all, to delete your Facebook account; and Nupoor Jalindre presents methods for training technical communicators to employ visual design and user experience strategies to combat fake news.

F.6 Teaching with Social Media

Fenwick 4008 | Panel

Networking Outcomes: Implementing Social Networking Sites in the FYC Classroom

Joel Bergholtz

Simulating Facebook's Newsfeed for Public Writing Pedagogy

Daniel Libertz

Owning Your Digital Shadow: Students' Right to Their Own Data

Mike Edwards

Joel Bergholtz presents strategies for implementing Social Networking sites into the FYC classroom; Daniel Libertz argues that writing constraints produced by algorithms can become accessible topics for writing instruction by using a simulation; and Mike Edwards argues that in an educational environment increasingly dominated by digital dataveillance for economic gain, instructors must be mindful of their ethical obligations to protect students' right to their own data.

F.7 Adopt-Adapt-Create: Teaching Digital Archival Practice through Collaboration in Technical Communication

JC-B | Panel

Erin Brock Carlson, Michelle McMullin, Patricia Sullivan

This panel argues that archival practices should be explicitly discussed and taught in technical communication courses; we further contend that digital archives should be presented as interactive platforms with material implications for their creators and users, rather than as mere containers of artifacts. This dynamic and digitally rich approach to teaching archival practice allows students to make connections between project management, information architecture, data storage, and retrieval, as well as the rhetorical, ethical and inventive choices they make in technical communication.

F.8 Formal Learning Meets Embodied Experience in the Computer Mediated Classroom

JC-C | Panel

Oriana Gilson, Lisa Dooley, Sarah Warren-Riley

This panel highlights our experiences as doctoral students teaching technical communication for the first time in computer mediated classrooms predominantly populated by undergraduate IT majors.

F.9 Gameplay, Choice, and Ethos in Writing Classrooms

JC-D | Panel

Flip it, game it, play it, grade it: a harder, better, faster, stronger pedagogy for FYC

Emi Stuemke

Gameplay and Operational Constraints in Digital Storytelling

Rebekah Shultz Colby

Examining the Ethos Construction of Metis and Phronesis in Gameplay

Cody Reimer

This panel looks at the role of gameplay in foregrounding student choice in flipped and advanced writing courses.

F.10 Valuing the Practical Wisdom of Practitioners: How Workplace Writing Research Can Change Writing Instruction

JC-G | Panel

The Phronesis of Proposal Writing

Heidi Lawrence & Rachael Lussos

Archive of Workplace Writing Experiences: A Digital Audio Collection and Inquiry into Professional Writing Development

Brian Fitzpatrick & Jessica McCaughey

This panel reports on two multi-year studies that demonstrate how writing instructors can tap into the practical wisdom of workplace writers through qualitative research.

F.11 Remediating Recipes: Food and/as Lived Experience

JC-F | Panel

Inedible Rhetoric: On Kitchen Creativity and Food Crimes

Jody Shipka

Fixing Memory: Recipes as Code, Artifact, Phronesis

Devon Ralston

Maternal Phronesis: Coding Sensed Cultures in Kitchens

Brianne Radke

Following Barthes and others who have suggested that entire worlds are created by, present in, transformed and communicated through food, we are interested in exploring food as a kind of code and coding practice.

F.12 Pedagogy as Phronesis: Practical Heuristic Approaches to Teaching Composition

JC-E | Panel

Developmental Writing, Video Games, and Composition Pedagogy

Sean Whelan

Writing with Video Games in First-Year Writing

Samuel Stinson

Teaching Procedural Rhetoric and Visual Enthymeme in the Science Writing Class

Garrett Cummins

Teaching Creative Storytelling and Critical Argumentation through Heuristic Play

Jon Stansell

Games in the composition classroom are phronetic, interactive multimodal texts that encourage students to further grow as writers through project-based learning, based on learner investment and interest through heuristic approaches. The four approaches included in this panel presentation focus on developing game-like heuristic activities to teaching composition in the developmental, first-year, and science writing classrooms.

F.13 Pedagogies of Writing for the Web

JC-239 | Panel

Distributed Innovation: Teaching as Co-Learning in Writing for the Web

Elizabeth Davis

Replacing "Writing" with "Content" in the Web-Writing Course

Jason Stuart

The Promises and Perils of Digital Writing as a General Education Course

Santosh Khadka

This panel discusses distributed innovation in writing-for-the-web pedagogies.

F.14 Negotiating Digital Subjectivity, Privacy, and Data

JC-Gold Room | Panel

The Problem with "Practical Wisdom" Offered by (Digital) Intellectual Property Gatekeepers

Jim Purdy & Karen Lunsford

The Interface between the Learned and the Lived: Changing Perspective to Unflatten Meanings

Laurence Jose

Understanding Digital and Material Writing Contexts through Cognitive Niche Theory

Julia Romberger

Panelists discuss intellectual property laws and myths, challenging the fixed viewpoint, and material influences on writing practices.

F.UGRS Undergraduate Research Symposium

George's @ the JC | Panel

The Road Less Traveled: A Documentary Film

Ashly Merced, Stony Brook University

Rethinking Teaching: An Exploration of Technology as a Tool in Education

Amanda R. Harris, Wright State University

Communicative Writing through Multimodality

Katelyn Caiati, Monmouth University

Keynote & Lunch

Saturday, May 26th

12:00 pm - 2:00 pm

Dr. Samantha Blackmon

Racing Games: On Games, Race, and Community Building

JC - Dewberry | Keynote

Video games are an interactive medium. We engage with them on a personal and embodied level. This talk focuses on the role that race plays in and around the games community. By viewing video games through a race based or racialized lens we are better able to illuminate the ways that race governs/ influences the experiences of people who play, teach, and create games. Here I look to and call for less traditional modes of scholarly interaction with games and the games community in an attempt to foster intersectionality and inclusion in our research and knowledge creation practices.

Samantha Blackmon is an Associate Professor of English - Rhetoric and Composition at Purdue University. Dr. Blackmon is the Editor of NYMG Feminist Games Studies Journal. Her research and teaching interests are in Minority Rhetoric and Digital Rhetorics. Her more recent research projects looks at identity, video games, and content creators. She is co-editor, with Cristina Kirklighter and Steve Parks, of Listening to Our Elders: Working and Writing for Change (USU Press, 2011), and has published widely in the journals and edited collections of composition, technical communication, and computers and writing.

Concurrent Session G

Saturday, May 26th

2:15 pm - 3:30 pm

G.1 Composing with Mobile Technologies

Fenwick 1014A | Mini-Workshop

Gavin Johnson, Laura Allen

In this mini-workshop, participants will consider the intersections of mobile technologies, composing practices, and identity. Our goal is to discuss, generate, and practice pedagogies that actively engage mobile technologies--and participants will also take out their mobile devices and compose with them.

G.2 The DRC as a Digital Rhetoric Playground: Writing in the Classroom, Writing in the World

Fenwick 1014B | Mini-Workshop

Adrienne Raw, Anne Gere, Brandee Easter, Carleigh Davis, Jason Tham, Kristin Ravel, Lauren Brentnell, Lauren Garskie, Naomi Silver

This mini-workshop will work towards finding new ways to play with the materials available on the Digital Rhetoric Collaborative (DRC). Attendees and facilitators will work in small groups to tinker with new ways in which DRC materials might help students bridge writing in the classroom and "out in the world."

G.3 Less Instructions, More Choice: Creating Assignments For All Students

Fenwick 4010 | Mini-Workshop

Claire Lutkewitte

Through hands-on activities, this mini-workshop will explore practical approaches to writing brief instructions and to helping students use such instructions to create meaningful writing projects.

G.4 Multimodal Assessment Genres: Helping Students to Research their Writing Practice

JC-A | Roundtable

Courtney Cox, Charles Woods, Joyce R. Walker, David Giovagnoli, Shane Combs

Panelists consider how “uptake activities” (types of textual productions that focus on documenting and articulating different kinds of learning) can be an essential aspect of visualizing and embedding our knowledge-making practices.

G.5 Multimodal Writing Platforms

Fenwick 3001 | Panel

The Word is Dead, Long Live the Word – Multimodal Communication in VR

Gareth Young

Breaching the Screen: A Digital Technofeminist Methodology for Virtual and Augmented Realities

Frank Macarthy

The Digital Sensorium: Considering the Senses in Design
Nathaniel Voeller

Panelists address multimodal writing through virtual reality texts-as-objects, augmented reality as a platform for technofeminist methodologies, and sensory composing through synesthesia and phantasia.

G.6 Rhetorical Play(ing): Contemplative Pedagogy, Experience Design, and the Cultivation of Virtue in Multimedia Composition

JC-F | Panel

Justin Hodgson, Eryn Johnson, Laura Rosche

The concept of play is a both metaphor and mode for thinking through key considerations in multimedia composition, particularly in relation to the classroom as an architectonic space of invention, and each panelist will adopt a different orientation to understanding how play can manifest in a variety of critical considerations for composition.

G.7 Public Writing Projects

Fenwick 4008 | Panel

Ecologies of Crowdsourcing a Digital Archive:
Undergraduate Writing and Public Engagement

Katie Bramlett

An Online Undergraduate Research Journal to Demystify Academic Writing

Thomas Geary

Fieldnotes versus Travel Blog: Teaching live autoethnography to study abroad students

Elizabeth Ferguson

Panelists address modes of writing needed to successfully crowdsource diverse communities for a public event; the development process of an online journal for undergraduate academic writing; and students who use the method of live autoethnography during a study abroad experience to write fieldnotes.

G.8 Algorithmic Authorship

JC-B | Panel

Cultivating Metic Intelligence Among the Algorithmic
Blackboxes of SEOs

Annette Vee

The Work of Art in the Age of Algorithmic Production

Steve Holmes

Computational Audiences and Media Manipulation

Timothy Laquintano

Human writers contend with computational and algorithmic writers in their vying for audience and content online. This panel addresses pressing questions about 21st century authorship online, with implications for how we prepare students to write in this brave new world.

G.9 How to Metamodern Your Classroom

JC-C | Panel

How to Avoid “Real” Text: Gist Reading and Writing

Paul Muhlhauser & Daniel Schafer

How to Awkward: Liminal Play in Conflicted Classroom

Robert Kachur

How to Donald Glover: The Transmedia Pedagogy of Because the Internet

Camden Ostrander

Metamodernity functions at the intersection between formal structures of learning and the deconstruction of the educational enterprise, where sincerity and irony are experienced simultaneously and not understood to be in conflict.

G.10 Inquiring Minds in Emerging Moments

JC-D | Panel

Inconceivable Encounters and Random Juxtapositions: On Composing Not Knowing

Daniel Anderson

Mixing, Machines, and Materials: On Performing Composing

Jody Shipka

We consider what might be gained from deploying inquiry to work not toward predefined outcomes and closure but toward opening possibilities for play.

G.11 Virtual Enviroing: Writing Ecologies with Mobile Media

JC-G | Panel

Jason Crider, Stephen Quigley, Shannon Butts, Jacob Greene

With more than half of all internet traffic flowing through mobile devices, digital texts are increasingly composed on the move. This panel explores the rhetorical affordances of mobile technologies through a discussion of four location-based digital writing projects.

G.12 Peer Response Rebooted: Perceptions and Challenges in Digital Environments

JC-E | Panel

It's Not a Competition: Using Technologically-Mediated Peer Feedback to Develop Community in Writing Classes

Kory Ching

From Google to Eli: Digital Peer Response Tools Mediate Writing Pedagogy

Stacy Wittstock

Perceptions Across Platforms: Students' Experiences with Peer Response in Digital Environments

Tialitha Macklin

Drawing both on classroom experience and a qualitative study of digital peer response, speakers on this panel explore some of the ways technology mediates peer feedback in writing courses.

G.13 Raced Spaces

JC-239 | Panel

Black Spaces: How Black Twitter Serves the Black Community as a Public Sphere

Liana Clarke

Raced Spaces: Embodied Marginality in Digital Contexts

Veronica Garrison-Joyner

Tweeting with Caution: The Risks and Possibilities of Black Women's Digital Literacy On Social Media

LaToya Sawyer

Liana Clarke introduces Black Twitter as a public sphere where users can implement change through creating discourse surrounding cultural and political issues and doxing (the act of calling someone out); Veronica Garrison-Joyner explores the cultural-historical situations that contribute to the formation of spaces, symbols, and communities marked by marginality within digital contexts; and LaToya Sawyer highlights prominent examples of backlash against Black women scholars for their critical tweets.

G.14 LOL - Humor and Composition

JC-Gold Room | Panel

The Dictionary Says What?: Irreverent Composition in the Classroom

Tracey Hayes

"Yo Momma is so Rhetorically Sensitive...": Engaging and Developing Students' Sense of "Good Humor"

Edrees Nawabi

Tracey Hayes examines the "irreverent composition" present within the Merriam Webster dictionary's tweets as a rhetorical method to define (and clarify language) as a response to the current Trump administration's misuse of words, suggesting that a study of how the dictionary uses a digital space to provide knowledge can determine how "irreverent composition" can be used within the classroom to teach students to participate in our democracy; Edrees Nawabi showcases two major course projects that use "good humor" to develop meta-linguistic awareness and rhetorical sensitivity.

Concurrent Session H

Saturday, May 26th

3:45 pm - 5:00 pm

H.1 The Politics of the Interface: Still at Play (or, how I learned to love it when we bomb)

Fenwick 1014B | Mini-Workshop

Molly Daniel, Morgan Gresham, Roxanne Aftanas

In this mini-workshop, presenters will describe ways that faculty members can incorporate undergraduate research using digital tools that connect students to real world problems they encounter in their non-school lives.

H.2 The GIF that Keeps on Giving: Assignment Design with Looped Animations

Fenwick 4010 | Mini-Workshop

Jamie Henthorn, Matthew Beale, Megan Mize

In this mini-workshop, we will introduce participants to pre-existing examples of GIF assignments we have used in courses, discuss avenues for pedagogical research, guide participants in the creation of new GIFs, and facilitate participants' efforts to design assignments that use GIFs.

H.3 Phronetic G-TAHs in a Frenetic World: Preparing Graduate Students for Future Teaching Responsibilities

JC-A | Roundtable

Alanna Frost, Haley Davis, Kylie Korsnack, Lee Hibbard, Charles Grimm

This panel brings together a seasoned WPA and a cohort of former graduate students whom she trained as composition teachers during their 2-year MA program; discussion will be grounded in reflection and analysis of texts from our time at UAH that have influenced our current teaching practices.

H.4 Designing Ethical Pedagogies of Play

Fenwick 1014A | Panel

Verbs of Play: Game Design Patterns and the Challenge of Feminist Gaming Instruction

Anastasia Salter

Video Games as Trolley Problem

Marc Santos

IRC IRL: Twitch Plays Pokemon and the Writing Class

Matthew Duncan

Anastasia Salter argues for more inclusive verbs of play; Marc Santos tracks how games force players to make a decision from terrible, seemingly impossible, choices; and Matthew Duncan explores the chat bot model of Twitch Plays Pokémon Red as a tool for writing pedagogy.

H.5 Multimodal Compositions

Fenwick 3001 | Panel

Multimodal Writing-to-Learn Across Disciplines

Paul Martin

But I thought this was a Composition Class!: Transforming Students' Composing Acts

Jeaneen Canfield

Destabilizing Standardized English and 'Speaking Back' through Multimodal Composition

Maryana Boatenreiter

Paul Martin shows how multimodal writing-to-learn allows students to play with a discipline's semiotic materials; Jeaneen Canfield analyzes students' resistance to a multimodal assignment; and Maryana Boatenreiter extends Christina Cedillo's "Multimodal Homeplaces" to align critical pedagogy with multimodal scholarship.

H.6 Digital Literacies and Digital Identities

Fenwick 4008 | Panel

SWIFT Participation: Hacking the Codes of Academic Writing

Peter Brooks

The Game of Expertise: Using Interactive Digital Learning Environments to Embody Professional and Novice Perspectives

Matthew Kelly

The Rebel Alliance: Analyzing Student Resistance in Digital Reflective Writing

Beth Caravella & Sarah Johnson

Peter Brooks introduces the SWIFT simulation, a semester-long role-playing game; Matthew Kelly has students create their own interactive learning environments using Minecraft; Beth Caravella and Sarah Johnson examine how students' use of "loopholes" illustrate their modifications of and resistance to expectations.

H.7 Bartholomae and Bogost in a Blender: Playing with New Definitions of Online Learning Environments

JC-B | Panel

Allison Hutchison, Andrew Kulak, Lauren Salisbury

This panel discusses online writing course (OWC) designers' responsibilities to space, place, and context.

H.8 Book Unbound: Collaborative Research on Digital Publication in the Humanities

JC-C | Panel

Naomi Silver, Adrienne Raw, Anne Gere, Melanie Yergeau

The Book Unbound project considers how to bring digital publication of humanities scholarship to a public, multi-layered audience, through the practical expertise of disciplinary experts from multiple fields working collaboratively on three in-progress humanities publications.

H.9 Access and Inclusion

JC-D | Panel

The Application of Rhetorical Listening in Digital Texts for Effective Interaction

Wenqi Cui

Metaphors We Click By: Unpacking Information Overload as Obesity Epidemic

Daniel Liddle

Reconstructing Access and Inclusion in Social Media

Barbi Smyser-Fauble

Wenqi Cui suggests applies concepts of circulation and rhetorical listening to multimodal assignments; Daniel Liddle explores comparisons between information literacy and nutritional literacy; and Barbi Smyser-Fauble argues that technical communicators should analyze how social media campaigns impact issues of socio-cultural access and inclusion.

H.10 Weaving Phronetic Threads: Feminist and Cultural Rhetorics Approaches to Professional Writing Curricula

JC-G | Panel

We Do Things Differently Here: Troubling Notions of “Professionalism” in Professional Writing

Katie Manthey

Localizing Professional Writing Curricula for Diverse Geographies and Economies

Lehua Ledbetter

Telling a Professional Writing Story: Building Relationships to Make Space for a New Curriculum

Maria Novotny

This panel offers multiple curricular approaches from three junior scholars trained in cultural rhetorics who have found themselves creating and implementing professional writing programs at starkly different institutions across the country.

H.11 Phronesis in Digital Spaces: Agency Shared among Humans & Technologies

JC-E | Panel

Daniel Hocutt, Megan McKittrick, Suzanne Sink

This panel presents three approaches to describing and enacting agency in digital environments: agency in online search as integrated across human activities and algorithmic procedures, agency in digital archives shared across archivist curation and website technologies, and agency in climate change games as enacted in play.

H.12 Composing Digital Public Writing Courses

JC-F | Panel

Specialized Media Tracks: A New Method for Teaching Public Digital Rhetoric

Drew Holladay

Risk Assessment: Public Writing, Student Autonomy and First-Year Composition

Sydney Bufkin

Drew Holladay discusses a multimedia writing course called Social Action and Digital Design; Sydney Bufkin describes the risks and rewards of a Writing in Public course.

H.13 Digital Texts and eBooks

JC-239 | Panel

Virtual Dust on a Bookshelf: Abandoned Wikibooks by and for Writing Students

Christopher Wyatt

"What is the Use of a Book without Pictures or Conversation?" High-Resolution E-Books in Literary Research

Keith Dorwick

Christopher Wyatt investigates how the Wikibook "Professional and Technical Writing" offers an example of a student writing project intended to be self-sustaining that now collects virtual dust on the Wikibooks shelves; Keith Dorwick showcases fully digitized editions of illustrated children's classics.

H.14 Phronetic Understanding Through Affect: A Rhetorical Analysis of Affective Game Mechanics

JC-Gold Room | Panel

Opposing Squad Goals: Metanoic Reflection on Permadeath in the XCOM Series

Christopher Stuart

The MIDA Quest: Destiny 2, Game Objects, and Affective Community

Joshua Wood

Locativity, Effective Satire, and Player Affect within Filmic
San Andreas

Alex Nielsen

Now We're Playing with Power: When Playful Affect meets Social Justice

Scott Reed

This panel aims to explore the rhetorical implications of affective gaming through an analysis of game mechanics within strategic squad-based games, shooters, role-playing games, and augmented reality. All of these games, though different in play, affect the player and community in similar ways. Presenters will explain affect through the use of mechanics such as fog of war and permadeath; loot and restraining group wisdom, satirical absurdity and interpolation; and jamming serious situations/games.

Poster Session

Saturday, May 26th

5:15 pm - 6:30 pm

George's @ the JC

Agency and Autonomous Monsters in the Age of Fake News

Mark Crane

Celebrities, Fans, and Queering Gender Norms: A Critical Examination of Lady Gaga's, Nicki Minaj's, and Fans' Use of Instagram

Brandy Dieterle

Keywords and Concepts in Technical and Professional Communication

Joy Robinson

Mobile Composition & Student Learning: Lessons from Writing in Place

Ashley Holmes

Phronesis and Pedagogy: Forms of Ethos in MMORPGs

Wendi Sierra & Douglas Eyman

Practically Human: What Makes Great Twitterbots

Moe Folk

Poster Session

Saturday, May 26th

5:15 pm - 6:30 pm

George's @ the JC

Retracing Blogging Experience as Digital Phronesis: Two Multi-cultural Microhistories

Sweta Baniya

What Pinball Teaches Us About Procedural Rhetoric

Ron Brooks

Changing the Rules of the Game: Reevaluating Terms of Service for Online Gaming

Lexie Scott (UGRS)

The Magic of Statistics: Revealing the Sorcerer's Secret

Evan Cypher (UGRS)

Procedural Ethos in Videogames

Rebecca Triplett (UGRS)

Concurrent Session I

Sunday, May 27th

9:00 am - 10:15 am

I.1 Using Clips of Video Games to Teach Rhetorical Concepts ... Even if You're Not a Gamer

Fenwick 1014B | Mini-Workshop

Greyson Sanders, Jen Ware, Ashley Hall, Bradley Weng

Inspired by the 8-Bit Philosophy Series on YouTube, the goal of this workshop is to create a series of short videos that illustrate rhetorical concepts through video game play.

I.2 Unspooling Twine: Practical Game Design as Writing and Research Pedagogy

Fenwick 4010 | Mini-Workshop

Justin Schumaker & C. McAllister Williams

We will show how game design compliments existing writing pedagogy, introduce the digital game design tool Twine, have participants make their own Twine games, and brainstorm analog game design alternatives.

I.3 Working With Sound: Audiobook Projects, Podcasts, and Pedagogy

JC-G | Mini-Workshop

Amelia Chesley, Megan McIntyre, Patricia Poblete, Lauren Malone

The speakers and moderator discuss their questions, experience, and insights about audio recording for audiobooks, for podcasts, and in classrooms. In addition to participating in lively discussion, the audience will walk away from this session with suggested readings for further study, a list of online and accessible tools and resources, possible projects to bring to the classroom, and some first-hand experience in recording.

I.4 Post-Truth, Post-Trump: Reflecting on the Future of Web Literacies

JC-B | Roundtable

Jason Luther, Rachael Shapiro, Brett Keegan, Vyshali Manivannan, Kristin Ravel, Dustin Edwards, Bridget Gelms

This roundtable extends the field's reassessment of web literacies and public rhetoric in the wake of the 2016 election, exploring the personal and pedagogical methods by which we cultivate practical wisdom online in a "post-truth" age.

I.5 Bringing the Game Design Industry to the Writing Class

Fenwick 1014A | Panel

Doing Interactive Media and Game Development in International, Intercultural Contexts

Jennifer deWinter

Unity in the Classroom: Identity, Community, and Professionalization in Online Courses

D'An Knowles Ball & Jennifer Hartshorn

Jennifer deWinter shares her research on the global circulation of games, working with students in Sweden and Japan; D'An Knowles Ball and Jennifer Hartshorn explore the ways forums used by independent game developers can be examined as active models for knowledge sharing and professionalization in the classroom.

I.6 Locating Digital Writing Space

JC-D | Panel

Brenta Blevins, Lee Skallerup Bessette, Zach Whalen

This panel seeks to question and to complicate our understanding of what we mean with the term "digital space" by exploring three different sites within their university where 1) physical space demonstrates digital concepts, 2) the digital is overlaid onto physical space, and 3) students compose in a digital space of their own.

I.7 Circulation, Agency, Virality

Fenwick 3001 | Panel

Share This Presentation or Get 10 Days of Bad Luck: Developing Students' Critical Literacies for Digital Circulation

John J. Silvestro

The Rhetoric of Poppy: Deconstructing the Engagement of a Viral Pop Textual Series

Cynthia Davidson

What Can YouTube Teach us About Rhetorical Agency?

Matt Homer

John J. Silvestro introduces a project that engages students in self-examination of what they did and did not circulate to foster critical literacies of their participatory circulation practices; Cynthia Davidson considers the Poppy project as a series of multimodal texts that prompts writers to reflect on the nature of YouTube celebrity and its audience; and Matt Homer analyzes the demonetization of "non-advertiser friendly" YouTube videos.

I.8 Digital Rhetoric Research Methods

Fenwick 4008 | Panel

Accounting for How Things Work: An Approach to Using Procedural Rhetoric as Method

Lourdes Fernandez

Collecting Data on Distributed Work: A Video Game Developer Case Study

Matthew Green

Topic Modeling and/as Genre Study

Moriah Kirdy

Lourdes Fernandez describes the design and implementation of a coding schema informed by procedural rhetoric; Matthew Green reports on a pilot study designed to use the participants to collect data on workplace tools and environments that would be otherwise inaccessible; and Moriah Kirdy considers the Latent Dirichlet Allocation (LDA) topic modeling algorithm and its topic-first orientation to study blog posts about the bullet journal.

I.9 Interface and Embodiment: Connecting Composition through Multimodal Technologies

JC-C | Panel

It's an Apple: Digital Art Archives in the Age of Alternative Facts

Amanda Stevens

Gaming Intimacies: Relationships with the Embodied Player

Krystin Gollihue

Video Voice: Research as an Embodied Interface

Lacey Nisbett

This panel examines interface and embodiment through the personal, the communal, and the scholarly, describing digital art archives, the physical and mental intimacies formed through immersive video game play, and an analysis of the embodied learning experiences of makers.

I.10 Serious Games as Sites of Practicing Research

JC-F | Panel

The Amnesia Trope as Procedural Rhetoric: Scientific Research and Uncertainty in Frictional Games' Soma

Kenneth Smith

Positionality Challenges the Use of Research in Interactive Fiction Games

Lisa Dusenberry

Contextualizing Research Through Serious Game Design

Robert Terry

This panel investigates the intersection between research and playing/designing serious games. Presenters will discuss the procedural rhetoric and experience of research created by playing Soma, the influence the positionality of the programmer has on the presentation of research through games, and the ways writing interactive fiction contextualizes secondary research, creating an inquiry process of productive failure.

~~I.11 Building Frameworks for Coding, Writing, and Publishing a Digital Book~~ (Cancelled)

JC-239 | Panel

Kathie Gossett, Liza Potts

Building a digital book is a process in which the author must do the scholarly work of an extended article or monograph plus the application work of building a website, app, or other kind of interactive system to display the scholarship. Working in a Digital Humanities lab with strong backgrounds in user experience and digital scholarship, the team leaders will share their reasoning behind technology choices, their methods for managing processes, and their efforts in implementing the project.

Concurrent Session J

Sunday, May 27th

10:30 am - 11:45 am

J.1 Thinking with Machines: The Impact of Visualizing Sound on Composing

Fenwick 1014B | Mini-Workshop

Ben Lauren & Bill Hart-Davidson

In this interactive and participatory mini-workshop, we extend the results of an experimental project where we worked to understand how DAWs (Digital Audio Workstations) create visual metaphors that shape our perceptions and performances as writers of sound. Additionally, we will explore how sound visualization(s) support a kind of rhetorical cognition in which soundwriters must think with machines via interfaces that respond to how we biologically process sound.

J.2 Writing with File Versions

Fenwick 4010 | Mini-Workshop

Tim Lockridge & Derek Van Ittersum

Versioning offers one possible remedy to struggles with file management that we see many writers (students and colleagues) experience. We believe that once writers can abandon the stress of managing multiple files for versions (which prompts confusion about which file is the most up-to-date), they can engage in more free and innovative composing.

J.3 Multimedia Composition, Soundscapes, and Games

Fenwick 1014A | Panel

Turning Swords into Spigots: Embodied Multimodal Composition in Video Game Housing

Danielle Stambler

Playing with Soundscapes: Students' Use of Sonic Presence in Video Game Narratives

Kati Fargo Ahern

From Poetry to Sonic Perfection: A Case for Teaching Sound Production through Literary Adaptation

Stan Harrison

Danielle Stambler explores how Everquest 2 players go beyond simply placing a couch next to a fireplace as they use thousands of items per "house" to rhetorically invent and arrange rich multimodal texts; Kati Fargo Ahern reports on students' use of sound, auditory imagination, and sonic presence in 10 kinesthetic-based "emplaced" video game narratives; and Stan Harrison shows how teachers can scaffold their students' knowledge of audio production and sound art by having them select and adapt their favorite short poem for sound.

J.4 Workplaces and Digital Literacy

Fenwick 3001 | Panel

LinkedIn as a Phronetic Approach to Digital Literacy

Theresa Evans

Changing the Context: When the Classroom Becomes a Workplace

Randy Gonzales

Practical Workplace Preparation: Webfolio Assignments in the Intermediate Writing Classroom

Tina Arduini

Theresa Evans elaborates on a phronetic approach to composition instruction using LinkedIn; Randy Gonzales examines an upper-level professional writing course that uses a simulated B2B writing services company; and Tina Arduini addresses the use of webfolios as a practical digital writing assignment in the intermediate writing class.

J.5 Student Support Structures in Digital Learning Environments

Fenwick 4008 | Panel

Envisioning a Digital Learning Environment: A Space for Pedagogical Discovery and "Play"

Alex Rockey & Andy Jones

Constructing Identity/Creating Consubstantiality: How Community College Basic Writing Syllabi Communicate "We"

Erika Johnson

Writing Centers as Tech Support: Redesigning Tutor Training with the "Digital Divide" in Mind

Laura Edwards

Alex Rockey and Andy Jones explain how the digital learning environment (DLE) encourages innovative writing instruction; Erika Johnson uses Linguistic Inquiry Word Count (LIWC2015) to isolate the pronouns I, you, and we to analyze thousands of Basic Writing syllabi; and Laura Edwards shares the design of writing center tutor training which supports students in functional and rhetorical computer literacy.

J.6 Navigating Digital Communities

JC-B | Panel

Women, Community, and Healing: Cyberfeminist Activities on Reddit

Meg McGuire

What Reddit Can Teach Us about Discourse Communities

Ryan P. Shepherd

For High-knowledge Threats: A Placebo-Controlled Rhetorical Trial to Treat Aca-trolls

Vyshali Manivannan

Meg McGuire explores reddit as a space for cyberfeminist activities by analyzing a subreddit for Polycystic Ovarian Syndrome (PCOS); Ryan Shepherd demonstrates how students in FYC explore the communities represented in subreddits; and Vyshali Manivannan asks the audience to experiment with rhetorical strategies that anticipate and mimic troll tactics, as a means to combat them.

J.7 Mediated Identities in Networked Publics: Audiences, Affordances, and Activisms

JC-C | Panel

Filters and Finstas: Performing Authenticity and Managing Audience in Networked Publics

Amber Buck

Ill Affordances: Feminism, Facebook, and the Stakes of Digital Activism

Martha Webber

Open in Public, Hidden from Friends: Pregnancy Loss and Infertility Disclosure on Social Media

Melissa Forbes

"I'm Gay, Y'all!": Coming Out On Facebook in Rural Alabama

Jesse Cosper

In an environment where users are encouraged to make public disclosures about their personal lives and points of view, the "context collapse" of reducing multiple audiences to a single list of followers raises the stakes on those decisions. This panel brings together research on social media users' rhetorical practices in managing audience on different platforms to represent themselves.

J.8 Writing the Digital World in Multilingual Courses

JC-G | Panel

Attuning Multilingual Students to a Multimodal Context

Jennifer Warfel Juskiewicz

Cinematic Composition and Multilingual Learners

Rachel McCabe

Advanced Expository Writing Goes Digital and Multilingual

Rebecca Ottman

Nearly one third of all international college students are from China; they are often underprepared for the wider US news media landscape and their role as digital agents within that landscape. This panel will offer three tested pedagogical strategies through which these students can be more attuned to and critical of such a landscape.

J.9 Negotiating Praxis, Phronesis, and Power through Usability Research and Consulting

JC-F | Panel

A Rhetorical Turn for Usability and User-Centered Design

Bill Williamson

From Consultant to Advocate through Usability

Service-Learning

Steve Benninghoff

Cultivating Phronesis through Usability Research Centers

Scott Kowalewski

Our presentations will examine ways usability work can embody phronesis in actively engaging users, clients, and stakeholders in community-building. Faculty running a usability research center, or directing service projects in a graduate course, can assert roles performing civic engagement and as public intellectuals and community advocates.

J.8 Mediating Space through a Digital Lens: Using Digital Composing Tools within a Social Justice Pedagogy Framework

JC-D | Panel

Digital Dispositions: Cultivating a Social Justice-based Pedagogy to Pursue Equity in Technology Accessibility

Erin Dittmer

I'm on the Hunt/I'm After You: Using Geocache to Highlight Rhetorical Awareness

Bri Lafond

Re/Designing the Multimodal Composition Classroom: Pedagogy, Curriculum, and Access

Savannah Block

Youth-led Participatory Action Research (YPAR) in the Secondary Setting

Logan Middleton

This panel presentation explores intersections between space, multimodal composition, and social justice pedagogy.

Lunch and 7C Meeting

Sunday, May 27th

12:00 pm - 1:00 pm

JC - Dewberry Hall

As we wrap up the conference and look forward to next year's event, please join us for a final meal and conversation. The traditional end-of-conference 7C meeting will also take place starting at 12:15 in the Gold Room; anyone interested in hosting C&W or in working to support the C&W community is welcome to attend!

The After-Party

Anyone who finds themselves free after the conference is welcome to attend the "after-party" at Chez Doug: 4243 Berritt St. Fairfax VA. (About a 10 minute walk from the dorms). The party will start at 2pm!

Conference Reviewers

Megan Adams
Jen Almjel
Timothy Amidon
Shawn Apostel
Tina Arduini
Kristin Arola
Anthony Atkins
Deb Balzhiser
Will Banks
Estee Beck
Lee Skallerup Bessette
Christie Bogle
Catherine Braun
Kevin Brock
Elkie Burnside
Janine Butler
Jimmy Butts
David Coad
Tammy Conard-Salvo
Mark Crane
Matthew Davis
Victor Del Hierro
Elizabeth Ferguson
Lourdes Fernandez
Alanna Frost
Laura Gonzales
Matthew Green
Mariana Grohowski
Ashley Hall
Steve Holmes
Chad E. Iwertz
Jim Kalmbach
Erin Karper
Aimée Knight
Lehua Ledbetter
Tim Lockridge

Rachael Lussos
Kristi McDuffie
Ryan Moeller
Jill Morris
April O'Brien
Dawn Opel
Kristopher Purzycki
Lynn Reid
Colleen Reilly
Rich Rice
Shelley Rodrigo
Rich Shivener
Ann Shivers-McNair
Naomi Silver
John J. Silvestro
Madeleine Sorapure
Kyle D. Stedman
Derek Van Ittersum
Matthew Vetter
Douglas Walls
Jen Ware
Bill Wolff
Melanie Yergeau

Special Thanks To...

Much gratitude is owed to the folks who work hard to make C&W a success, both this year and across many years. Shout outs go to:

C&W 2018 Associate Chair & Graphic Designer

Rachael Lussos

C&W 2018 Artwork and Logos

Beth Caravella

C&W 2018 Co-Conspirator and Sommelier

Steve Holmes

C&W 2018 Volunteer Coordinator

Matt Green

C&W 2018 Library Liaison

Jen Stevens

C&W Website Administrators

Jen Ware

Ashley Hall

Daniel Anderson

C&W Mentoring Maven

Traci Gardner

Caring for the Future Award Committee

Kristin Arola and Cheryl Ball

Graduate Research Network Chairs

Janice Walker and Angela Haas

Conference Volunteers

Mary Baldwin
Sweta Baniya
Jackie Brown
Beth Caravella
Michelle Conklin
David Corwin
Caitlin Dungan
Elizabeth Ferguson
Lourdes Fernandez
Madeline Graham
Steve Holmes
Xaviar Jenerette
Michelle LaFrance
Rachael Lussos
Matt Magelssen-Green
Laurie Miller
Alex Monea
Bethany Monea
Ashlee Payne
Tom Polk
Shantay Robinson
Robyn Russo
Norma Smith
Sheri Sorvillo
Cheri Spiegel
Sommer Marie Sterud
Jen Stevens
Ruth Tallman
Rebecca Triplett
John Walter
Ashley Yuckenberg

Conference Sponsors

Adobe
Eli Review
Hybrid Pedagogy
W.W. Norton

GMU PhD in Writing and Rhetoric
GMU MA in Professional Writing and Rhetoric
GMU Department of English

GMU University Libraries

The University Libraries forms an intellectual nexus for George Mason University. We foster innovation, creativity, and imagination by facilitating access to scholarship and information, providing expert consultation in the research process, and actively teaching the effective and critical use of information. And, we fulfill a critical role in the creation, dissemination, and preservation of knowledge.

The Libraries support the university's mission in a number of ways, including working with students, faculty, and staff throughout the teaching, learning, and research processes; encouraging critical thinking and informed citizenship by supporting digital, data, media, and cultural literacy; and collaborating with on- and off-campus partners to promote and sponsor such events as the 2018 Computers and Writing Conference. For more information, visit library.gmu.edu.

Participant Index

Aaron Geiger	34	April Conway	15
Aaron Lanser	26	Ashanka Kumari	18,31
Abbie Levesque	19	Ashley Brooks	49
Adrienne Raw	57,65	Ashley Hall	21,71
Aimée Knight	13,32	Ashley Holmes	69
Alanna Frost	63	Ashly Merced	55
Alan Reid	44	Barbi Smyser-Fauble	66
Alexa Olah	23	Becky Childs	44
Alex Nielsen	68	Ben Lauren	76
Alex Rockey	51,78	Ben McCorkle	17,28
Alice Henton	33	Beth Caravella	65
Allegra Smith	18,51	Bill Hart-Davidson	25,76
Allison Hitt	46	Bill Williamson	80
Allison Hutchison	65	Bill Wolff	13,40
Amanda Hill	44	Bonnie Kyburz	20
Amanda R. Harris	55	Bradley Weng	71
Amanda Stevens	74	Brandee Easter	57
Amber Buck	79	Brandy Dieterle	69
Amber Lee	47	Brenta Blevins	72
Amelia Chesley	71	Brett Keegan	72
ami Atassi	20	Brian Fitzpatrick	53
Amy Patterson	15,50	Brian Gaines	47
Ana Cortes Lagos	39	Brianne Radke	54
Anastasia Salter	16,64	Brice Nordquist	39
Andréa Stella	36	Bridget Gelms	72
Andrew Famiglietti	19	Bri Lafond	80
Andrew Kulak	65	Brittany Cote	23
Andy Jones	78	Bryan Jones	19
Angela Haas	23	Byron Hawk	47
Anna Smith	48	Caleb Andrew Milligan	34
Anna Zeemont	36	Camden Ostrander	60
Anne Gere	57,65	Candice Lanius	15
Annette Vee	59	Carleigh Davis	57
Ann Shivers-McNair	15	Caroline Dadas	19
Anthony Saylor	49	Carrie Gant	35
Anthony Varlese	35	Casey McArdle	22

Catherine Forsa	20	David Hochfelder	17
Catheryn Jennings	28	David Maynard	51
Charlee Helmstetter	35	David Rieder	25,38
Charles Grimm	63	Dawn Mellinger	18
Charles Woods	58	Debra Purdy	38
Chelsea Slack	15,50	Denise Paster	44
Chen Chen	17	Dennis Jerz	14
Cheryl Ball	30	Derek Van Ittersum	76
Chris Kamrath	36	Devon Cook	27
Chris Lindgren	31	Devon Ralston	54
Christina Cantrill	48	Donnie Sackey	23
Christina Rowell	18,38	Douglas Eyman	17,69
Christopher Ritter	34	Douglas Walls	25,45
Christopher Stuart	47,68	Drew Holladay	67
Christopher Wyatt	16,40,67	Drew Stowe	25
Chrysandra Medley	42	Dustin Edwards	72
Claire Lutkewitte	57	Edrees Nawabi	62
Cody Reimer	53	Elisa Finlay	25
Collin Bjork	47	Elizabeth Chamberlain	32
Courtney Cox	58	Elizabeth Davis	55
Courtney Werner	37	Elizabeth Ferguson	59
Courtne Morin	18	Elizabeth LaPensee	28
Cristina Sanchez-Martin	33	Elizabeth Losh	29
Crystal Fodrey	14	Elkie Burnside	22
Crystal VanKooten	38	Elvira Carrizal-Dukes	33
Cynthia Davidson	73	Emily Hensley	18,50
Dan Frank	48	Emi Stuemke	23,53
Daniel Anderson	60	Eric Hamilton	15,50
Daniel Cox	16	Eric Murnane	16,24
Daniel Frank	16,40	Erika Johnson	78
Daniel Hocutt	67	Erika Romero	45
Danielle Nicole DeVoss	35	Erika Sparby	24
Danielle Stambler	77	Erin Brock Carlson	52
Daniel Libertz	52	Erin Dittmer	80
Daniel Liddle	66	Erin Kathleen Bahl	17
Daniel Schafer	60	Eryn Johnson	58
D'An Knowles Ball	72	Estee Beck	25
David DeVine	33	Esther Milu	37
David Giovagnoli	58	Evan Cypher	70

FeiFei Ma	28	Jen Ware	71
Frank Macarthy	58	Jesse Cosper	79
Gareth Young	58	Jesse Rice-Evans	36
Garrett Cummins	54	Jessica McCaughey	53
Gavin Johnson	18,57	Jill Belli	37
Geoffrey Gimse	13	Jill Heney	38
Greyson Sanders	20,71	Jim Haendiges	34
Halcyon Lawrence	24	Jimmy Butts	34
Haley Davis	63	Jim Nugent	25
Haley Shea Barfield	42	Jim Purdy	21,55
Harley Ferris	22	Jody Shipka	14,54,60
Heidi Lawrence	53	Joel Bergholtz	52
Heidi Naylor	38	John Gallagher	33
Ian Golding	41	John J. Silvestro	13,73
Ibrahim Alaswad	33	John Murray	32
Jacob Greene	60	John Walter	30,41
James Neel	33	Jon Stansell	54
Jamie Henthorn	63	Joshua Wood	68
Janine Butler	46	Joyce R. Walker	58
Jan Rune Holmevik	15,47,50	Joy Robinson	15,31,69
Jason Crider	60	Julia Romberger	55
Jason Luther	72	Julie Bates	30
Jason Markins	14,27	Julie Lindquist	21
Jason Palmeri	17	Justin Hodgson	58
Jason Stuart	55	Justin Schumaker	71
Jason Tham	27,57	Kaitlin Clinnin	48
Jathan Day	39	Karen Lunsford	55
J. Daniel Hasty	44	Kate Birdsall	22
Jeaneen Canfield	64	Kate Fedewa	22
Jenae Cohn	26,36	Katelyn Caiati	55
Jen Justice	17,27	Katherine DeLuca	24,48
Jennifer Buckner	38	Kathie Gossett	75
Jennifer deWinter	72	Katie Bramlett	59
Jennifer Hartshorn	72	Katie Manthey	48,66
Jennifer Hewerdine	49	Kati Fargo Ahern	77
Jennifer Marlow	21	Keith Dorwick	67
Jennifer Miller	40	Kelly Moreland	20
Jennifer Sheppard	30	Kem Saichaie	51
Jennifer Warfel Juskiewicz		Kenneth Smith	74
	79

Kenton Howard	20	Lisa Phillips	30
Kevin Brock	34	Liza Potts	25,75
Kevin Eric DePew	51	Logan Middleton	80
Kimberly Fahle	47	Lourdes Fernandez	73
Kirstin Bone	21	Lydia Wilkes	25
Knight, Aimee	13	Lynn Reid	49
Kory Ching	61	Madeleine Sorapure	44
Kristie Ellison	18	Madison Jewell	42
Kristina Fennelly	32	Mai Xiong	36
Kristin Arola	23,28,30	Manea Alharbi	35
Kristine Blair	23,24	Marcia Bost	34
Kristin Ravel	57,72	Marc Santos	64
Kristopher Purzycki	13	Margaret Moore	39
Krystin Gollihue	36,74	Maria Novotny	21,66
Kyle Larson	31	Mark Crane	69
Kylie Korsnack	63	Martha Webber	79
Lacee Nisbett	74	Maryana Boatenreiter	64
Laquana Cooke	31	Mary P. Sheridan	17
LaToya Sawyer	61	Mary Stewart	26
Laura Allen	57	Matthew Beale	63
Laura Edwards	78	Matthew Duncan	64
Laura Gonzales	15,33	Matthew Green	73
Laura Moeller	16,24,44	Matthew Halm	38
Laura Rosche	58	Matthew Jacobson	49
Lauren Brentnell	57	Matthew Kelly	65
Laurence Jose	55	Matt Homer	73
Lauren Garskie	20,57	C. McAllister Williams	71
Lauren Malone	71	Megan Cahill-Assenza	28
Lauren Salisbury	65	Megan McIntyre	71
Lauren Woolbright	16,40	Megan McKittrick	67
Lee Hibbard	41,63	Megan Mize	63
Lee Skallerup Bessette	72	Meg McGuire	78
Lehua Ledbetter	66	Meg Mikovits	14
Les Hutchinson	21,31	Melanie Kill	45
Lexie Scott	70	Melanie Yergeau	23,39,65
Liana Clarke	61	Melissa Forbes	79
Lindsey Albracht	36	Melissa Green	21
Lisa Dooley	53	Michael Day	21
Lisa Dusenberry	31,74	Michael Harker	28

Michael Trice	25	Robert Kachur	60
Michelle McMullin	52	Robert Terry	74
Michelle Sprouse	32	Robin Farabedian	18
Mike Edwards	52	Robin Wharton	19
Moe Folk	69	Ron Brooks	70
Molly Daniel	63	Ronisha Browdy	37
Morgan Gresham	63	Rory Lee	19
Morgan Read-Davidson	40	Roxanne Aftanas	63
Moriah Kirdy	73	Ruth Osorio	46
Naomi Silver	21,57,65	Ryan P. Shepherd	78
Nathan DeProspro	47	Samantha Blackmon
Nathaniel Voeller	58		23,24,56
Nicholas DeArmas	40	Samuel Stinson	54
Norah Fahim	36	Sandra Nelson	32
Nupoor Jalindre	45,51	Santosh Khadka	55
Oriana Gilson	53	Sara Austin	20
Patricia Fancher	17	Sarah Baker	23
Patricia Poblete	27,71	Sarah Johnson	65
Patricia Sullivan	52	Sarah Lozier-Laiola	24,31
Patrick Berry	39	Sarah Warren-Riley	30,53
Patrick Johnson	34	Sarah Welsh	17
Paul Martin	64	Sara Maurice Whitver	21
Paul Muhlhauser	34,60	Savannah Block	80
Peter Brooks	65	Scott Caddy	33
Philip Choong	20	Scott Kowalewski	80
Rachael Lussos	53	Scott Reed	68
Rachael Ryerson	22	Sean Whelan	54
Rachael Shapiro	72	Sebastian Ivy	47
Rachael Sullivan	24	Seth Graves	36
Rachel Atherton	45	Shane Combs	58
Rachel McCabe	79	Shannon Butts	60
Rachel Winter	18,50	Shauna Chung	15,50
Ragan Glover-Rijkse	36	Shelley Lloyd	50
Randy Gonzales	77	Shelley Rodrigo	47
Rebecca Ottman	79	Shelly Lloyd	15
Rebecca Tarsa	33	Simon Cruz	28
Rebecca Triplett	70	Skyler Schack	35
Rebekah Shultz Colby	53	Stacy Wittstock	61
Rich Shivener	19	Stan Harrison	77

Stephanie Hedge	50
Stephanie Hilliard	69
Stephanie Vie	40
Stephanie Weaver	24
Stephanie West-Puckett	48
Stephen Boakye	45
Stephen McElroy	51
Stephen Quigley	60
Steve Benninghoff	80
Steve Holmes	59
Steve Krause	37
Steven Smith	38
Sushil K. Oswal	46
Suzanne Sink	67
Sweta Baniya	31,70
Sydney Bufkin	67
Theresa Evans	77
Thomas Geary	59
Thomas Javier Castillo	15
Tialitha Macklin	61
Tiffany Carter	27
Tim Lockridge	76
Timothy Laquintano	59
Tina Arduini	77
Tracey Hayes	62
Trenia Napier	18
Veronica Garrison-Joyner	61
Victor Del Hierro	37
Victoria Houser	15,47,50
Vyshali Manivannan	72,78
Wendi Sierra	17,42,48,69
Wenqi Cui	66
Willa Murphy	49
Will Penman	17
Zach Whalen	72

gayle morris sweetland digital rhetoric collaborative

The Sweetland Digital Rhetoric Collaborative — a collaboration of the Gayle Morris Sweetland Center for Writing, the University of Michigan Press, and Michigan Publishing — is both a book series and a community web space by and for scholars and teachers working in computers and writing and digital rhetoric.

 digitalrhetoriccollaborative.org   SweetlandDRC

Want to get involved with the Digital Rhetoric Collaborative community?

Apply to be a DRC Graduate Student Fellow • Contribute to a Blog Carnival

Review a conference session • Submit a proposal to the DRC Book Prize

Add to the DRC Wiki • Use DRC materials in your classroom

Learn about all of these opportunities, and more, on the DRC website!

 LSA GAYLE MORRIS SWEETLAND CENTER FOR WRITING
UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

 M
MICHIGAN
PUBLISHING

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN PRESS

Hybrid Pedagogy An open-access journal of learning, teaching, & technology

ARTICLES ADVOCATE FOR:

- Student agency
- Critical pedagogy
- Marginalized voices
- Reflective praxis

OUR PROCESS FEATURES:

- Radical openness
- Iterative, collaborative, conversation-driven peer review

Visit us online or chat in the Johnson Center!

 hybridpedagogy.org |  hybridped |  @hybridped

FOUNTAINHEAD
PRESS

Fiercely Independent

Fountainhead Press is a unique, independent publisher concerned with producing innovative, low-cost textbooks and custom products. Our mission focuses on working with universities to create ideal, program-specific texts. Importantly, we prioritize sustainable printing practices, using only FSC certified printers and printing on 30% post-consumer waste, recycled paper.

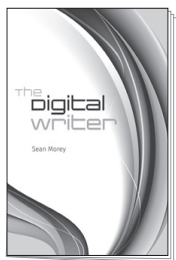

Fountainhead Press content represents the most recent conversations in teaching Composition.

Writing Moves is a comprehensive first-year guide to writing effectively in and across a range of private, public, and academic communities in a digital world. Each chapter details writing strategies (moves) for inventing, drafting, revising, publishing, and circulating that are specific to different contexts for writing.

Authors: Eleanor Kutz, Denise Paster, Christian J. Pulver

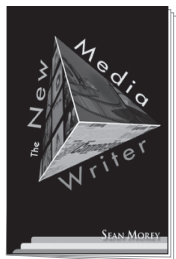

978-1-68036-392-0

The Digital Writer is an introduction to writing that extends traditional concepts of argumentation and rhetoric to include an emphasis on how digital rhetorics and technologies transform writing practices in students' everyday lives as well as their academic and professional careers.

Author: Sean Morey

978-1-68036-354-8

The New Media Writer invites students to become producers, rather than simply consumers, of new media, instructing them in how to interpret, plan, compose, revise, and distribute their work utilizing digital technologies

Author: Sean Morey

978-1-59871-780-8

For information about submitting proposals or working with our press, please contact Christina Bruer at 503-309-0280 or cbruer@fhpress.com www.fountainheadpress.com

Eli Review is a peer learning app that helps instructors build a culture of feedback.

Eli codes reciprocity as a key feature of a feedback-rich culture.

We're playing with methods to represent reciprocity and need your input. Read about it and vote for the best graph:

goo.gl/op75ox

Rhetoric and Professional Writing

PhD in English

Concentration areas include

Rhetoric and Composition

Professional Writing

Digital Studies

Teaching assistantships are available.

Professional development and teacher training in composition, technical writing, writing centers, and writing program administration.

Find our faculty's work in such venues as University of Michigan Press, Utah State UP, Computers and Composition Digital Press, Computers and Composition, JAC, Pedagogy, and Games and Culture.

find more online
english.okstate.edu

A Splendid Wake

Archiving the Poets and Poetry of the DC Area

Annual Spring Equinox Program
Summer Solstice PopUp Poetry Blog

Visit Our Wiki:

<https://wikis.library.gwu.edu/dcpoetry/>

Read(and contribute to) our Blog:

<https://splendidwake.blogspot.com>

Interested in volunteering?

Contact: asplendidwake@gmail.com

TEXAS STATE UNIVERSITY

MA RHETORIC & COMPOSITION

- Explore minority rhetorics, digital literacies, writing centers, writing and empathy, and more.
- Work with nationally-recognized faculty
- Teach writing in high schools and universities
- Develop and lead writing initiatives
- Write professionally
- Pursue the PhD in Rhetoric and Composition

"My experience in the program has been invaluable to me as a composition instructor and to my development as a Ph.D. student." Casie Moreland

Graduate Assistantships, Scholarships, and Financial Aid available

CONTACT: MARC@TXSTATE.EDU 512-245-7684

MARC.ENGLISH.TXSTATE.EDU

University Libraries

WRITE TO THE TOP

Earn a Professional Writing master's degree or graduate certificate online from ODU.

ODUOnline
OLD DOMINION UNIVERSITY™

Contact us today to learn more:
ONLINE.ODU.EDU/GRAD-WRITE

